Rome-Berlin Bloc, "Formi-

CUNEO, Italy, May 20 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, addressing a cheering mass meeting close to the French frontier, declared tonight the Italian-German "military alliance would give Europe a bloc of 150,000,000 men "against which it will be impossible to do anything."

Mussolini likes to refer to the combined populations of the Italian and German empires as 150,000,000 men, although he included women and children in the total.

Telling the crowd the Rome-Berlin bloc would be formed with the signing of the military pact next Monday, Mussolini said:

"This bloc, formidable in men, in arms, wants peace, but is ready to impose it in case the great conservative and reactionary democracies should try to halt our irresistible march."

The mention of "the great democracies" brought prolonged boos from the crowd. There were cries of "Tunisia!" "Nice!" "Savoy!" all belonging to France and "We will march!"

Mussolini spoke in Cuneo's main square after a week's tour of Piedmont, the northwestern part of Italy which borders France and Switzerland.

Yells of acclamation went up as he appeared and marched to the rostrum.

CLIPPER PLANE OPENS U. S.-EUROPE SERVICE

Four-Engine Ship Takes Off
From New York With
100,000 Letters.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).—The Yankee Clipper, carrying 100,000 letters, took off from Port Washington, Long Island, at 12:07 p. m. today (11:07 a. m. St. Louis time), inaugurating regular transatlantic service between the United States and Europe.

Arthur E. La Porte is skipper of the plane, which carried a crew of 14 and two company officers.

President Roosevelt telegraphed congratulations and best wishes "for an endless succession of happy landings" to La Porte just before the takeoff.

"It is singularly appropriate," the message said, "that the world's first regularly scheduled air service between the United States and Europe should be inaugurated today."

This is pretty much of a routine thing," La Porte said of the flight to reporters. "Naturally the crew is pleased to be participating in this first scheduled flight. We expect to reach Horta in the Azores in about 14 hours."

OTTAWA, May 20 (AP).—Queen Elizabeth added a feminine touch today in a last-minute change in the text of the first real public address she ever made.

Laying the foundation stone of the new Supreme Court of Canada after a brilliant ceremony of trooping the colors in celebration of King George VI's birthday, she said:

"Perhaps it is not inappropriate that this task should be performed by a woman, for woman's position in civilized society has depended upon the growth of law."

The Queen wanted that sentence inserted.

She has launched ships, opened hospitals, sponsored charity festivals and other routine of royal endeavor—but her first real speech was here in the Dominion of Canada.

Part of it was in French and she said the new building would be a fitting addition to the growing group of public buildings springing up along the cliff top overlooking the Ottawa River, "unsurpassed as a symbol of the free and democratic institutions which are our greatest heritage."

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).—The reason housewives pay "three or four times as much" for fruits and vegetables as the farmer gets for them is given by the Twentieth Century Fund, an endowed research organization.

The fund has prepared for June publication a report entitled: "Does distribution cost too much?"

It discloses that in 1935, for example, the housewife had to pay an average of 5½ cents for a bunch of carrots for which the farmer got 1 cent.

She paid 31.8 cents a dozen for oranges which brought the grower only 8.7 cents.

She had to pay 4 cents a pound for cabbage for which the farmer received only .7 of a cent.

But she had to pay only 36.6 cents a dozen for eggs which brought the farmer 24.1 cents.

SECRECY ON PLANS FOR QUINTUPLETS' TRIP TO SEE KING

Their Train May Stop at Toronto Suburban Station to Avoid Crowds.

By Canadian Press.
CALLANDER, Ont., May 20.—Preparations for the arrival of the Dionne quintuplets in Toronto to meet King George and Queen Elizabeth are being kept secret.

A railway executive said the seven-car special train, The Quintland, which will take the five sisters on their first trip away from home, might stop at a suburban station to avoid crowds expected to mass around the Union Station for a glimpse of the quintuplets.

Their physician and guardian, Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, has said he is disturbed by the possibility the little girls might be harmed in the crush of admirers.

The exact time of the Dionnes' arrival and departure is not being divulged. They are expected to board their train early tomorrow night and will be put to bed immediately.

The five sisters are scheduled to be presented to the King and Queen about noon Monday in the Ontario Legislative Building.

KANSAS CITY EXAMPLE IN LANDON'S SPEECH

Alert Citizenry Needed for Good Government Regardless of Type, He Says.

ELLINWOOD, Kan., May 20 (AP).—Former Gov. Alfred M. Landon used the Kansas City (Mo.) cleanup to illustrate his point that an alert and watchful citizenry was a necessary adjunct to good government.

"We have all been watching with constant amazement the revelation of the disgrace of Kansas City," the Republican nominee for President in 1936 told Ellinwood High School graduates.

"The Democratic machine there has enriched itself through as many different varieties of corruption as Mr. Heinz has pickles, yet here was a charter molded on the latest theories of municipal government."

"A little earlier than Kansas City adopted its charter, Cincinnati adopted a similar one. In Cincinnati a group of Republicans tried to take over the new administration and failed because of the alertness of local citizens."

"In Kansas City a Democratic organization succeeded in taking over the entire new administration because of the neglect of Kansas Cityans to look after their new charter crop of government."

HENCHMAN TAKES TIME FOR DECISION

Both Indicted for Failure to Report Their Shares of Pay-off for Notorious Fire Insurance Rate Compromise Deal.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1939, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)
KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—With Thomas Pendergast, wealthy and erstwhile powerful Democratic boss, ready to plead guilty, before United States District Judge Merrill E. Otis Monday, of evading Federal income taxes on income of $443,550 and to throw himself on the mercy of the Court, attorneys for his fellow defendant, R. Emmet O'Malley, consulted the Judge and prosecutor today about the possibility of a similar plea by O'Malley.

Sentence on Pendergast will be imposed by Judge Otis Monday.

A decision as to O'Malley, former State Superintendent of Insurance, will be made next Saturday, it was announced by one of his lawyers, William G. Boatright.

O'Malley is charged with evading taxes on income of $62,500. Previously it had been expected he would decide, either today or by Monday whether to plead guilty or stand trial.

Conference With Judge.

There was a brief conference between Boatright and Terence M. O'Brien, representing O'Malley, and United States Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, after which this group, accompanied by Milligan's chief assistant, visited the Judge briefly, shortly before noon. After the consultations ended, Milligan told reporters that Pendergast would make whatever statement was to be made.

It was understood that the attorneys for O'Malley did not indicate what his decision would be, but that O'Malley was waiting to discuss his choice with friends. As a result of a conference between O'Malley and Milligan Thursday night, O'Malley is represented as realizing that he may not expect leniency if he pleads the Government to the trouble and expense of trial.

Judge Otis will depart for Chillicothe, Mo., Monday afternoon to hold court and will not return here until next Saturday.

The maximum punishment on each of two counts in the Pendergast indictment may be five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000. In such cases prison terms on separate counts usually are made concurrent.

It is expected that Pendergast, who is 66 years old, will be sent to a penitentiary, and confined in a hospital ward because of his poor health.

The indictments, returned last month as the climax of the collapse of Pendergast's political power, were based primarily on charges that Pendergast and O'Malley received shares of the $460,000 "notorious fund" pay-off in the notorious compromise of Missouri fire insurance rates. In the case of Pendergast, $315,000 of the income was from this pay-off and the remaining $125,550 was from dividends and salaries drawn through dummies in some of his widespread business activities. The entire sum in O'Malley's case, it is alleged, is from the pay-off.

Unconditional Surrender.

The Government, in a series of recent conferences with Pendergast's lawyers, demanding unconditional surrender—a plea of guilty rather than of no contest; payment in full of the evaded taxes on 1935 and 1936 income, together with penalties and interest, and no consideration of probation. However, the Boss, whose personal and political fortunes began tumbling with the Government's successful prosecution of the case, refused to make such a plea.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20 (AP).—H. F. McElroy, who resigned several weeks ago as city manager during an inquiry into Democratic political machine influence in municipal government, was reported to be in a grave condition today in a hospital.

DIVERS FOR 9 UNDERTAKERS STRIKE IN EAST ST. LOUIS

Demand Closed Shop; Firms Picketed, Funerals Are Conducted
With Other Chauffeurs.

Twenty union chauffeurs employed by nine East St. Louis undertakers struck today for a closed shop. Pickets were placed in front of the establishments, and the undertakers conducted funerals with other drivers.

William Nichols, secretary of Teamsters and Chauffeurs' Local 729, A. F. of L., told a Post-Dispatch reporter the employers had agreed to a wage increase of $5 a week, to $40, for regular drivers, and to an increase of 60 cents a trip, to $3.60, for substitutes. The nine employees, who are members of the Association of Undertakers, had used some non-union men as substitute drivers and refused to sign a closed-shop agreement, which would eliminate the practice. Two firms outside the association signed the closed-shop agreement, Nichols said.

GOEBBELS CALLS WEAPONS BEST OF ALL ARGUMENTS

At Cologne He Say Reich Grasps Situation Lightning-Fast, Makes Lightning-Fast Decisions.

ARMY STRONGEST POWER IN WORLD

News Agency Accuses Chamberlain of Trying to Repair Broken Porcelain—Hitler Ends Tour.

COLOGNE, May 20 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels told the world last night that "there is no better argument than weapons" in the face of British Prime Minister Chamberlain's proposal of a long-range peace policy. Crowning a week in which the impregnability of Germany's western fortifications have been dinned into German ears daily, the Propaganda Minister spoke last night to a Nazi gathering in Cologne while Chancellor Hitler moved northward from a demonstrative six-day tour of the western frontier.

Goebbels' leadership, he declared, differs from that of other European countries in that it "grasps a situation lightning-fast and then, lightning-fast, makes necessary decisions."

Strongest Power in World. Goebbels spoke of the German army as "the strongest military power in the world" and said: "A walk to Berlin (by an enemy) today belongs to the realm of fancy."

Even the German peacemaker, he asserted, does not know how strong its army is.

"When one reads the Polish newspapers, one comes to the conclusion that the Poles do not know it either," he added.

In a long article, Voelkischer Beobachter today Goebbels criticized "encirclement" of Germany and said:

"What would they do to us if we were not armed and equipped to the teeth? The German people should thank their Führer every hour, on its knees, that he not only foresaw this development but also prepared for the case in good time."

Efforts of Chamberlain. Deutsche Dienst, authoritative service of the official news agency DNB, said Chamberlain's statements in the House of Commons yesterday "obviously show an effort to justify his policy on all sides—domestically and on the outside—and to establish it as constructive."

"In reality," Deutsche Dienst commented, "he appears to be trying to patch together some of the porcelain which English policy has smashed in the last few months."

Nazis especially resented Chamberlain's remarks concerning "states which have fallen to German ambition."

"Even a Benes (former Czechoslovak President) would have had no cause to fear before German ambition," Deutsche Dienst said, "if he had not seen it as the purpose of his state to give itself up as an anti-German bulwark for foreign powers and thereby violate national and the history of his country."

"It may have been satisfying for England to have won a willing, helping nation (Poland) on the German frontier. In his enthusiasm over this prospect, Chamberlain apparently has even misplaced Turkey on the German border. Britain has mutual defense understandings with Poland and Turkey."

"Informed sources said Chamberlain's speech contributed little of positive value toward lessening the present European tension."

West Wall Invincible. Chancellor Hitler wound up his six-day tour of bunkers, tank traps, dugouts of steel and concrete walls and huge German cannon along the Reich's western frontier south of Kehl and across the Rhine from France with the statement that "the inspection of the west wall convinces me of its invincibility."

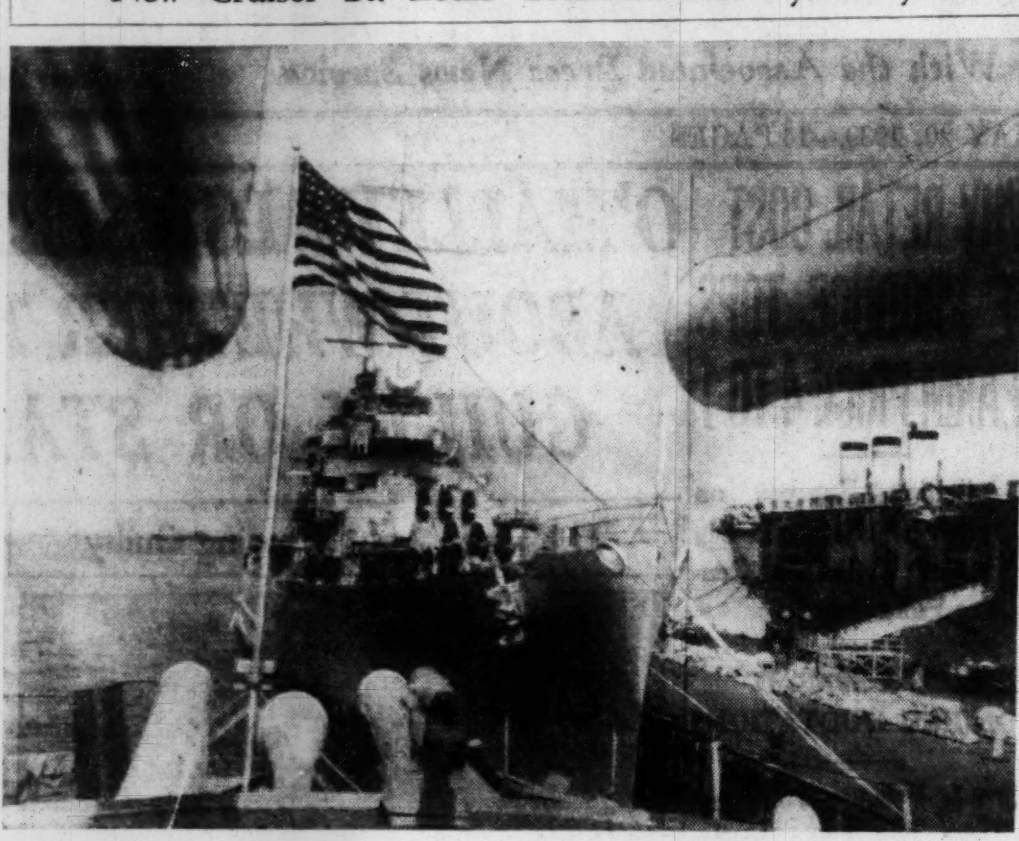

At Muensterlager, black-uniformed SS guards staged a sham battle here today for Hitler. The SS regiment "Deutschland" reinforced by a detachment of light and heavy artillery, demonstrated an attack on a fortified position.

Late in the day the Fuehrer arrived at Efringen on the Swiss border, where his tour officially ended. He left there for Berlin, where he is expected to arrive today to take part in ceremonies attending the visit here of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister.

Standards already were raised in Berlin for flags with the Count Ciano on his arrival tomorrow to sign the Rome-Berlin military pact. Eight thousand storm troops have been called out as traffic policemen.

Americans Killed in Hungary. BUDAPEST, May 20 (AP)—Two American tourists were killed yesterday when their automobile crashed into a Vienna-bound bus at Győr, near the Hungarian frontier. Gayda Says Pact Will Be Brief and to the Point.

ROME, May 20 (AP)—Virginio Gayda, Fascist writer regarded as a prelude stating harmony of interests and objectives of the two Powers in action, Gayda said.

Germany and Italy would be bound to one another for "consultations, ready and reciprocal intervention for assistance, complete solidarity in war, and reciprocal protection for their respective interests, which is to say for the space necessary to live," he said.

Gayda indicated that in event of war the pact might mean extensive troop movements of the two Powers in each other's countries.

"We need our military victory to be supplemented by a political one; it is not sufficient to attain our sacred unity; we must work for it. Let those who have been repented come forward and they shall be admitted. But let them be under no delusion that they are going to be accepted immediately; they must first prove by their deeds that they have repented."

Presumably he referred to those citizens who affiliated with the defeated republic.

The burglary was discovered this morning by Herman Friedman, store manager. Entrance had been gained by forcing a screen on a side window.

MADRID, May 20 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco, standing before the Las Salesas Church altar surrounded by Government chiefs and 16 Spanish Bishops, asked for divine aid today to lead the Spanish people "toward full liberty of empire."

From Cardinal Goma y Tomas, Primate of Spain, Franco received a jeweled sword, a symbol of his conquest in a religious thanksgiving ceremony in suburban Santa Barbara.

Franco made this prayer: "Oh Lord, deign to accept the efforts of this people always Thine, which with me has defeated for Your sake the enemy of truth in this world."

"Lord God, in Whose hands all right and power resides, lend me Your help to lead this people toward full liberty of empire, for Your glory and that of Your church."

Handing the sword to the Generalissimo, Cardinal Goma y Tomas said: "The Lord be always with you. He, from Whom all right and all power comes and under Whose empire all things are, blesses you and with loving providence continues protecting you, as well as the people entrusted to your care."

The solemn Te Deum of thanksgiving was witnessed by the Papal Nuncio to Spain, diplomats and Franco's wife and daughter.

The Generalissimo was showered by roses as he entered and left the church.

In a midnight speech, Franco had said his Nationalist Government was ready to collaborate with other European nations, but would not bow to economic pressure.

Concluding the civil war victory celebration, which was a farewell to German, Italian and Moorish fighters in his army, Gen. Franco laid down briefly this bit of foreign policy in a midnight broadcast.

"We want a great Spain, but we place our dignity above all. We shall not tolerate any attempt against our sovereignty, because it would be useless."

Siege against us from an economic viewpoint would amount to hampering our attempt at rapprochement with other countries.

"We need our military victory to be supplemented by a political one; it is not sufficient to attain our sacred unity; we must work for it. Let those who have been repented come forward and they shall be admitted. But let them be under no delusion that they are going to be accepted immediately; they must first prove by their deeds that they have repented."

$15,000,000 ARMY PLANE ORDER PLACED

150 New Model Attack Bombers, Called Best in World, to Be Built.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP)—The Army placed a $15,000,000 order today for new model attack bombers. The number was not disclosed, but more than 150 were understood to be involved. The order went to the Douglas Aircraft Co., Santa Monica, Cal.

Major-General Henry H. Arnold, Air Corps chief, said the new model had a "better performance than any comparable airplane in production or in service anywhere in the world today."

The craft, an all-metal monoplane, was described as an improvement of the attack bomber planes ordered by the French Government from the Douglas company last January after an air crash in California which touched off a congressional controversy over sale of planes to France.

The speed of the ships was kept confidential, but was reported to exceed 350 miles an hour.

NAZI PLOT TO ASSASSINATE BENES IN U. S. REPORTED

Information Turned Over to Police by Former Czechoslovak Minister to France.

PARIS, May 20 (AP)—Diplomatic sources said today that Stefan Ossusky, former Czechoslovak Minister to France, had forwarded to ex-President Eduard Benes information of a Nazi-fomented plot to assassinate him in the United States, where he is lecturing.

Ossusky was said to have turned over all his information to French and American police authorities, who are investigating. His information, described as coming from secret agents in Prague, was said to include charges that the plot was fomented by the Nazi secret police in the former Czech capital.

Although the Czechoslovak republic was broken up in March under pressure from Germany, France still accords Ossusky diplomatic status.

MOB FAILS TO FIND NEGRO HELD FOR KILLING WHITE GIRL

PINE BLUFF, Ark., May 20 (AP)—Sylvester Williams, Negro, charged with the murder of a white girl, was held in an unidentified jail today after a second failure of crowds to seize him from officers.

Deputies, armed with a machine gun, rifles and tear gas, grappled last night with a young white man who shouted "let's get him," as several hundred persons milled about the Pine Bluff jail. Officers fired two warning shots in the air and the man escaped.

Two weeks ago the Negro was whisked away while officers talked with a crowd. Two trips through the jail convinced leaders of the mob that the Negro was not held here.

FRENCH LEADERS TALK TO HALIFAX ON RUSSIAN PACT

Paris Trying to Break British-Soviet Deadlock; Said to Be Suggesting Three-Way Plan.

PARIS, May 20 (AP)—British and French diplomats conferred today in search of a plan to align Soviet Russia in the British-French front.

Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet, for France, met with British Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador to Paris.

Hope was expressed in quarters close to the French Government that an accord would be reached between Britain and Russia by Wednesday after further talks next week during a League of Nations Council meeting at Geneva. Halifax is en route to the league meeting.

The French Cabinet was understood to have approved proposals aimed at breaking the deadlock. These proposals were understood to provide for a limited three-Power mutual assistance pact.

Nine New Decree Laws. The Cabinet also approved nine new decree laws tightening France's defense preparations and bearing a review of the international situation in which Bonnet emphasized France's role in working for success of the British-Russian negotiations.

Russia is demanding an outright military alliance and British-French guarantees to the Baltic states, but Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain objects to such a move as dividing Europe into "ideological" blocs.

French critics of Britain's stand, who are deeply strong and, by the influence dominating the British Government, pointed out that France was bound to go to Russia's aid anyway if Russia were attacked, and that Britain is France's ally.

Russia's attitude about the same possibility was that two assurances were better than one.

Provisions of New Decrees. The new decree laws authorize the Government to requisition any building in France for military use, because of the "nature and duration" of the royal visit, Lord Tweedsmuir would continue to do those "functions, which always have to be carried on from day to day."

Assent to U. S. Trade Pact. Instruments of ratification covering two Canadian-United States trade agreements were signed yesterday by King George, adding another precedent to the long list he has created since arriving in North America.

Women were evening gowns. Those attending were the higher-ups of Canada's order of precedence, and all had to be in position 40 minutes before the booming of the 21-gun royal salute on Parliament Hill heralded the King's coming.

Throne chairs were placed under a new crimson canopy which hung over the Speaker's dais.

As the royal salute boomed, the Union Jack was lowered from the flagpole atop the Peace Tower, and the standard-bearer of the lion rampant on a field of gold—fluttered in its place.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Senator Dandurand, Government leader, in Privy Councillor uniforms of dark blue, gold-braided tunics, white knee trousers and white hose, greeted the King and Queen when they stepped under the portal of the main entrance.

Within the Senate chamber was the huge circular crimson cushion, wool sack on which sat the seven Justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, headed by Sir Lyman Duff.

Banked on either side were the seats for Senators and their wives, the diplomatic corps and the other dignitaries. The Commons members sat behind the bar before the bar placed across the Senate entrance.

The crowds murmured as the Queen appeared. An ermine capelet collared with white fox topped her white taffeta crinoline gown.

The white skirts were inset with a band of pale yellow taffeta, heavily embroidered with gold sequins. The King wore his scarlet-clothed Field Marshal's uniform.

The blue ribbon of the Order of the Garter, draped from the Queen's shoulder and pinned at her hip with the diamond order, matched the sapphires in her diamond tiara.

King George took the throne on the right of the Queen.

King and Queen Receive 140 Reporters and Enjoy It

"Are All of You Going?" Asks Her Majesty. Referring to Tour—George VI Laughs at New Yorker's Slang.

By FRANK H. KING

OTTAWA, May 20 (AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth received 140 newspapermen and newspaperwomen yesterday in what probably was the most unusual reception the British sovereigns ever had given.

Both the King and Queen seemed to enjoy it. Told by George Steward, press liaison man at No. 10 Downing street, who is traveling with the royal party, that this correspondent had gone from a post in London to one in Dallas, Tex., two years ago, Queen Elizabeth seemed intrigued.

"Texas sounds like a fascinating place," she said.

"I am sure you would find it so. Your Majesty," this somewhat nervous reporter said, striving for that restraint and understatement characteristic of the Lone Star State.

The King and Queen added newspaper writers attached to the royal train to their admirers by the way they handled in friendly informal British and foreign journalist guests when, through the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir, they received the reporters to a reception at Government House.

"Are all of you going?" asked the astonished Queen as she entered and saw the crowd in the room. She seemed somewhat relieved when told that only about 50 would accompany the royal train on the trans-continental tour, others being members of the parliamentary press gallery at Ottawa and local writers.

The King and Queen shook hands with everyone present and found subjects of mutual interest with many. She asked the woman writer whether they were enjoying the experience. She appeared to be having a good time.

The King talked less, but with easy, quick questions when he wanted to know something.

"I saw you standing in a chair at the stadium yesterday," he said to a London photographer. "How in the world did you get back to Montreal in that crowd?"

"You certainly are in there punchy," said a New York reporter to His Majesty. "I don't know how you can take it."

King George laughed. Maybe he was kidding the slang man, but he seemed to like it.

more closely, after the manner of England and Scotland, by ties of affection, of respect and of a common ideal, is my fondest wish."

Lord Tweedsmuir waits. King George, having taken physical possession of the throne in yesterday's parliamentary ceremony, could if he liked assume all the royal functions of Government which normally the Governor-General carries out.

The niceties of this situation were such that Lord Tweedsmuir waits at the Government House when the King went to the Senate yesterday, since the King could represent himself and it would not have been appropriate for the Governor-General (Monarch by proxy) to exercise any royal functions.

It was explained, however, that because of the "nature and duration" of the royal visit, Lord Tweedsmuir would continue to do those "functions, which always have to be carried on from day to day."

Assent to U. S. Trade Pact. Instruments of ratification covering two Canadian-United States trade agreements were signed yesterday by King George, adding another precedent to the long list he has created since arriving in North America.

For the first time in history a British sovereign sat in the Senate of the Canadian Parliament as it sits in Westminster. In London he opens and prorogues Parliament with state ceremonial, but here he gave only royal assent to bills.

The ceremony started with the assembly of dominion dignitaries and the Canadian Cabinet as they sat in Westminster. In London he opens and prorogues Parliament with state ceremonial, but here he gave only royal assent to bills.

Women were evening gowns. Those attending were the higher-ups of Canada's order of precedence, and all had to be in position 40 minutes before the booming of the 21-gun royal salute on Parliament Hill heralded the King's coming.

Throne chairs were placed under a new crimson canopy which hung over the Speaker's dais.

As the royal salute boomed, the Union Jack was lowered from the flagpole atop the Peace Tower, and the standard-bearer of the lion rampant on a field of gold—fluttered in its place.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Senator Dandurand, Government leader, in Privy Councillor uniforms of dark blue, gold-braided tunics, white knee trousers and white hose, greeted the King and Queen when they stepped under the portal of the main entrance.

Within the Senate chamber was the huge circular crimson cushion, wool sack on which sat the seven Justices of the Supreme Court of Canada, headed by Sir Lyman Duff.

Banked on either side were the seats for Senators and their wives, the diplomatic corps and the other dignitaries. The Commons members sat behind the bar before the bar placed across the Senate entrance.

The crowds murmured as the Queen appeared. An ermine capelet collared with white fox topped her white taffeta crinoline gown.

The white skirts were inset with a band of pale yellow taffeta, heavily embroidered with gold sequins. The King wore his scarlet-clothed Field Marshal's uniform.

U. S. DEFICIT FOR YEAR $3,076,000,000; RECORD DEBT IS $40,227,000,000

WASHINGTON, May 20. WITH six weeks of the fiscal year to go, the Treasury today announced a record deficit of $3,076,000,000, creating a deficit of $40,227,000,000.

By June 30, expenditures are expected to total about $300,000,000 less than the budgeted $9,500,000,000 and receipts about $200,000,000 more than the predicted $5,000,000,000, making the deficit $3,500,000,000.

This deficit would be about on a par with those in the heavy spending years of 1934 and 1935, but far less than the peace-time record of $4,763,842,000 in the 1936 fiscal year, when the soldiers' bonuses were paid.

Next year, the deficit is budgeted for $3,300,000,000, but some administration advisers are discussing an enlarged spending program.

The public debt now is at a record of $40,227,000,000, which is $3,063,000,000 more than it was a year ago.

The right of the dais and the Queen the left. Once they were seated, Maj. Drew Thompson, gentleman in waiting, took the King and Queen to the State Dining Room, ordered those present to sit.

The royal assent followed, with a clerk holding seven bills in his hand and bowing to the King, of whom he asked the question: "May it please Your Majesty the Senate and House of Commons have passed certain bills to which I humbly request Your Majesty's assent?"

The King nodded and the clerk said: "His Majesty doth assent to these bills," in both French and English.

The State Dinner. In the vaulted, gray-walled ballroom of Rideau Hall, the King and Queen dined last night with leading Canadians and representatives of foreign Powers accredited to him as King of Canada.

None but high officers of church and state and their wives were invited to sit around the flower-banked horseshoe table. There were no speeches.

For this event the King wore a full-dress uniform of an Admiral with the Order of the Garter and the Queen wore the Order of St. Michael and St. George. The Queen wore the ribbon of the Order of the Garter and a diamond tiara.

United States Minister Roper was among those seated to the right of Lady Tweedsmuir.

The menu consisted of cold essence of celery, halibut supreme with choron sauce; saddle of baby lamb with mint sauce and jardiniere of vegetables; young pullet York style with Ontario asparagus; and crown of ice cream imperial and sweet savory.

Vandals Damage 20 Tombstones. STERLING, Ill., May 20 (AP)—Trustees of a Catholic cemetery here offered a $100 reward yesterday for information leading to the arrest of vandals who damaged 20 tombstones. The trustees estimated the damage at several thousand dollars.

MILITIA PERMITS HARLAN RALLY BUT RESTRICTS UNION

Allows United Mine Workers to Hold Meeting Tomorrow—Says Provocation Must Be Avoided.

HARLAN, Ky., May 20 (AP)—Military permission was granted to the CIO United Mine Workers today to hold a Sunday mass meeting, but under restrictions.

Brigadier-General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the State troops in this soft-coal field where 46 men were arrested last night after an exchange of gunfire between troops and a mountain-side ambulance, laid down the following conditions for the meeting:

"1. Time and place to be approved by the military commander. "2. Union leaders must pledge to refrain from speech and action calculated or tending to create disorders or which tend to provoke violent passion or action against those desiring to return to work, or against the military."

MILITIA PERMITS HARLAN RALL BUT RESTRICTS UNION

Allows United Mine Workers to Hold Meeting Tomorrow—Says Provocation Must Be Avoided.

HARLAN, Ky., May 20 (AP)—Military permission was granted to the CIO United Mine Workers today to hold a Sunday mass meeting, but under restrictions.

Brigadier-General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the State troops in this soft-coal field where 46 men were arrested last night after an exchange of gunfire between troops and a mountaineer ambulance, laid down the following conditions for the meeting:

"1. Time and place to be approved by the military commander. 2. Union leaders must pledge themselves and their members to refrain from speech and action calculated or tending to create disorders or violence against persons or property, or to return to work, or against the military.

"They must also prevent the assembling of noisy groups, cursing, calling 'scab' on the streets, roads or highways, jeering at soldiers, intentional interference with traffic movement, or invasion of private property.

"Traffic to be controlled. 3. On account of recent disorders due to riotous elements in the Cumberland and Lynch areas traffic will be controlled at Cumberland.

"4. Traffic will be controlled at the Bell County line and at the Virginia State line.

"5. All parades will be prohibited. 6. This permission will be revoked if there are any further disorders or shootings or large gatherings in the vicinity of any of the mines today, tonight or Sunday.

"7. Upon violation of any of the above conditions the mass meeting will be stopped or prohibited at the discretion of the military commander.

William Turnbull, president of the Harlan district of the union, when shown a copy of the order, said: "Who issued this, Hitler or Mussolini?"

Other Developments. The ambush incident topped a series of developments last night which included the wounding of a miner and the announced intention of the government to send police Kentucky interstate highway bridges to keep Communists out of the State.

Gov. A. B. Chandler received a letter from Chicago yesterday on stationery of the American Vigilant Intelligence Federation, signed "Harry Jung, honorary general manager," telling him that "the first contingent of a group of 14 Communists" had left Chicago Wednesday night, headed for Harlan, and expressing belief Communists from other states would follow.

"Gen. Carter said troops 'returned the fire' of a group of persons on a mountain slope near Louellen, Ky., east of Harlan, and then drove away their assailants.

Lieut. J. C. Fleming said some of the guardsmen were taken to police custody at Highpoint, about four miles from Louellen, as they rode along a highway in a truck. In the truck, Lieut. Fleming said, the militia found two pistols, a blackjack, a razor and several knives.

Several hours earlier Eugene McLaughlin, a 24-year-old miner, was shot in the thigh when someone yelled "scab." A man identified by a National Guard Major as John Padgett was jailed for the shooting.

Meantime Federal Labor Conciliator John L. Conner, after conferences with the union and operators, said, "I am hoping and I predict a settlement will be made next week."

There were indications of a joint meeting of the operators and miners but no time was set.

The Harlan County Coal Operators' Association, representing 42 mines in the local field, is the only large group of soft coal owners still refusing the United Mine Workers' union shop contract. Normally, more than 12,000 miners are employed by them.

Brian McMahon, Assistant United States Attorney-General, who prosecuted the anti-labor conspiracy cases at London, Ky., last year involving some of the operators and corporations in the Harlan field, flew from Washington to Kentucky.

Stopping at Louisville, McMahon said: "What I'm here for is to go down to Harlan to observe, in a co-operative spirit, just what the conditions are from the standpoint of all the people. And that means for all the people."

He said he planned to see Gov. Chandler to discuss the situation.

UP 30,600 FEET IN GLIDER

25-Year-Old German Claims New Altitude Record.

BERLIN, May 20 (AP)—A 25-year-old pilot, Peter Gloeckner, made a two and one-half hour flight yesterday in which he broke the world altitude record for gliders. Gloeckner's instruments recorded 9200 meters (about 30,600 feet).

The figure is being submitted to the Federation Internationale Aeronautique for official recognition. Heinrich Dittmar of Germany was credited with the previous record of 4325 meters (14,186 feet).

COAL MEN TOLD TO SOLVE SMOKE POLL AT SOURCE

Harlan Bartholomew Says Cities Otherwise Face Economic Suicide of Decentralization.

W. U. CONFERENCE DINNER SPEAKER

Smoke Must Go Whatever the Method and Whatever the Cost, Plan Engineer Declares.

Coal producers and retailers must help solve the smoke problem "at the source" if American cities are to avoid the "economic suicide" of decentralization, Harlan Bartholomew, engineer for the City Plan Commission, said last night at the dinner at the Coronado Hotel of the Washington University conference.

The conference, sponsored by the university's school of engineering in co-operation with the City Department of Smoke Regulation and the Coal Exchange of St. Louis, closed at noon today after a session at Brown Hall on the university campus. More than 200 dealers, engineers, mine operators and officials had registered for the dinner.

"We cannot afford to abandon cities," Bartholomew said, "because the producers and users of one type of fuel are unwilling to offer it in a form that will not contaminate the air or make our environment unsatisfactory and unacceptable.

Smoky Atmosphere. "It is not here contended that the smoke problem alone is responsible for the decentralization of cities. It is a factor of great importance, also, the other hand, we can say definitely that the presence of a smoky atmosphere will absolutely prevent wholesale reconstruction of cities or any other housing program."

"We cannot afford not to rebuild cities and so smoke must go whatever the method and whatever the cost."

Only in the rebuilding of the central areas can American cities save themselves from the ruinous cost of continued spreading out, Bartholomew declared.

Process Under Way. "The modern American city is degenerating to such an extent," he said, "that virtual abandonment of large sections of cities is taking place. The process is gradual and subtle. It is a sort of involuntary process. We are in the position of attempting to maintain the old city, which is fully supplied with public utilities, and at the same time, to build a new area of urbanization which will not merely require large outlays of capital for utility service, but also annual maintenance costs of great magnitude.

"Any sensible person will know that our economic resources are such that we cannot long continue to meet all of the costs involved in the maintenance of a city which is in a state of virtual abandonment of our cities."

He pointed out that the city's economic condition because of the economic depression directed at your industry. With you, more than with other groups, rests the responsibility for making one of the basic issues involved in bringing about any rational solution to this great problem."

Object of Conference. Dean Alexander S. Langsdorf of the engineering school introduced Bartholomew and spoke on the aim of the conference, which is to bring persons in this area interested in the elimination together for an annual meeting.

Speakers at yesterday afternoon's session were W. D. Leach, president of the Commercial Testing and Engineering Co. of Chicago, and Clarence B. Pullum, vice-president of Bell & Gossett, heating manufacturers of Chicago.

The principal speech this morning was on "What the Consumer Should Know About the Purchase of Coal," by J. E. Tobey of Cincinnati, manager of the fuel engineering of Appalachian Coals, Inc.

CITY PUBLIC DEFENDER WINS ACQUITTAL FOR 33 OUT OF 235

Report for Year Shows 197 First Offenders Pleaded Guilty and Five Were Convicted.

The City Public Defender Bureau today acquitted 33 first offenders without fines or terms, and five were convicted by the jury after a trial by the jury on March 31, it was shown by the report of Director C. Lloyd Stanwood filed yesterday with Director of Public Welfare Joseph M. Dars.

The bureau accepted 303 cases charged before it later when 40 were referred to the juvenile court or were shown to have been convicted previously. Twenty-eight are pending. Of the 235 cases disposed of, 197 defendants pleaded guilty and five were found guilty after a trial. Four of those who pleaded guilty were paroled.

TIE IN LABOR ELECTION AT GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

Editorial Workers 54 to 54 on Guild—Business Units Give Majority.

Editorial department employees of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat split 54 to 54, in a tie vote on the question of representation by the American Newspaper Guild in an election supervised by the National Labor Relations Board yesterday.

Six commercial departments voted for Guild representation by substantial majorities.

Although the Guild received 130 of a total of 215 votes cast, each department determined individually whether Guild representation was desired. One unmarked ballot in the editorial department vote was declared void.

Guilid complaints of discrimination, filed against the newspaper, are pending in the Labor Board. Yesterday's consent election was held after the management refused to recognize the Guild as collective bargaining agent.

Two IN STOLEN AUTO CRASH INTO POOL IN POLICE CHASE

They Flee on Foot, Later Men Are Arrested.

Two men found riding in a stolen automobile on North Broadway early today were chased by police in a scout car from East Cano avenue to Atholene avenue, where the automobile crashed into a light standard when the driver attempted to make a quick turn. The men fled on foot before the policemen, who had fired two shots in the chase, arrested.

Shortly afterward, two men seen waiting for a street car at Broadway and Taylor avenue were arrested for questioning. They were identified by one of the policemen who had followed the stolen automobile, but denied knowing anything about the car. The automobile, owned by Edward C. Heilmann, 4414 Atholene avenue, had been stolen shortly before midnight in the 5200 block of Oriole avenue.

100 DELINQUENT INCOME TAX SUITS, TOTALING $25,000 FILED

Amounts Involved Range From $7 to $860, for Various Years From 1928 to 1937.

About 100 new suits for delinquent State income taxes totaling approximately $25,000 have been filed by the office of Assistant Attorney-General Joseph A. Lennon, continuing a campaign to collect such taxes begun here in 1936.

The suits, filed in the court of Justice of the Peace Anton Sestric, for amounts ranging from $7 to $860, alleged to be due for various years from 1928 to 1937. Up to the beginning of this year, the campaign had resulted in a collection of $225,141 in back taxes in St. Louis and the County.

TWO GET TWO YEARS EACH FOR VIOLATING MANN ACT

Members of Carnival Company, Arrested Here, Sentenced on Pleas of Guilty.

Ernest Watson and Ernest D. Rice, members of a carnival company, who were arrested here, were each sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by United States District Judge Charles B. Davis today on their pleas of guilty of violating the Mann Act.

Watson was charged with transporting a woman from Mammoth Springs, Ark., to St. Louis, and Rice with transporting a woman from Oklahoma City. Both were indicted by a Federal grand jury.

St. Louis Motorcyclist Hurt. SAN FRANCISCO, May 20 (AP)—George Murray, 23-year-old professional motor cycle rider from St. Louis, was seriously injured yesterday when a tire blew out as he was stunting on his speeding cycle. Murray was catapulted from the machine on which he was riding 60 miles an hour almost horizontally, in the motorcade, a concession at the Golden Gate Exposition.

O'Malley Also Sees Judge About Entering Guilty Plea

Possibility of a lighter sentence than if convicted in trial by jury.

Abandonment by the Government of an investigation of his income in the other years within the period of limitations, 1933, 1934 and 1937. (He has obtained an extension of the time for filing his return for 1938.)

Elimination of possible additional charges of evasion on 1935-36 income.

Avoidance of public testimony on the facts about the insurance pay-off and Pendergast's intricate politico-business affairs.

Payment of the taxes and penalties will be a hard blow in itself, costing Pendergast in excess of $434,896. The indictment lists the sums evaded as $35,377.31 for 1935 and $230,127.81 for 1936, and says taxes paid in those years were only $464.89 and $25,481.11, respectively.

How easy it will be for the defendant to raise cash for this bill is not known, but various arrangements as to payments, including installments, are available.

The prosecution learned today the background of the negotiations in the effort to make the blow as light as possible. The first approach, with "feathers" about the advantage of entering a plea of guilty before the grand jury, the order of a trial; the opportunity to avoid further prosecution; the suicide of his confidential lieutenant in various business enterprises, Edward L. Schneider, whose body was found late in 1936 to cover the expenses of his illness, after he had left a New York hospital, where he was treated for coronary thrombosis.

Rise of Pendergast Power. For years Pendergast had been growing in political power in the control of Kansas City and Jackson County. With the overthrow of the Republicans in 1932 he extended his power to most of the State offices and he became an intimate of Postmaster-General James A. Farley. After the power of the Federal Government was turned against his machine in the vote fraud cases, Gov. Lloyd C. Stark fired O'Malley, Pendergast's man as State Superintendent of Insurance, then ordered a cleanup of crime and vice in Kansas City. The Governor also played a prominent part in preventing interference with the Federal investigation of the income of the Boss.

Political influence has been helpful in landing plums for some of Pendergast's business enterprises, which have at times found little competition. His known interests include: Ready-mixed concrete, general construction, liquor wholesaling, a Kentucky distillery, asphaltic paving, concrete pipe, crushed rock, the profitable Sanitary Service Co., which has had a $350,000 city garbage collection contract, and a Clay County farm on which he has 28 thoroughbred horses.

Besides outlining the nature of the evidence against Pendergast, the prosecutors will tell the Court Monday, said the Kansas City Star, of his extravagant spending habits and his proclivity to be a sucker for heavy betting on horse races. "It is expected," the paper added, "that some startling figures about Pendergast's betting will be revealed."

The original Pendergast indictment was voted April 7, covering only the insurance pay-off. A new one, adding business income, was voted April 29, and the first one is to be dismissed. Pendergast entered a formal plea of not guilty May 1. Later, Attorney-General Frank Murphy announced that no delay would be tolerated in trial of the Pendergast or O'Malley.

An additional inquiry into O'Malley's affairs, including facts about his safe-deposit box, has been under way by the grand jury, which will meet again Tuesday. Some of O'Malley's friends have been hopeful that Pendergast might say something to the Court tending to absolve O'Malley, but this has been classified as "wishful thinking."

O'Malley is charged with "evading $589,511 in taxes, a sum which will be increased materially by penalties and interest."

Time Out to Study Exhibits. Exhibits, crowding two floors of the Convention Hall, closed yesterday at noon. Physicians completely were absent in the week-end by the heavy lecture program took time out in the forenoon for study of the scientific displays and the annual sample-hunt through the commercial exhibits, to both of which admission was carefully limited by badge.

Popular among the prodigious variety of samples—their filled arms and occasionally a bag or box when pockets overflowed—was St. Louis beer, served free in the Opera House restaurant to persons who had been to the exhibit. Bartenders and waitresses were not permitted to disclose the name before a patron ordered, but the word spread. A bartender's estimate that nearly 2000 cases had been served by noon, when the exhibit closed, with the exhibits, was said in the auditorium concession office to be exaggerated.

A scientific exhibit of particular concern to St. Louisans was one of the Iowa State Health Department, which, for the first time, had a special booth for the Midwest. It set forth that the main agent in the common dog tick, formerly unsuspected as a disease factor. While the ticks here are not believed to be infected so far, the dog tick was reported to have been found in the Midwest and is again this season. Use of dipping, forceps, pliers or rubber gloves was advised in removing them.

Among the exhibits by St. Louisans was one for the treatment of rheumatism, which, by the medical term, is a delicate operation on the brain. Unrelated to the primary cause, frequently encephalitis, it broke the nerve chain entailed in the tremor without interfering with normal motion, explained Dr. Roland M. Klemme.

The urgency of protecting convalescent children from colds by check on attendants and visitors was strikingly emphasized in the final section meetings by specialists in the ear, nose and throat and in the diseases of children, who were gathered together in an Auditorium assembly room.

The discussion followed a paper by Dr. T. Duckett Jones and Dr. John R. Mote of Boston on serological studies indicating a connection between streptococcal infections in colds and sore throat and the occurrence, or more particularly the recurrence, of rheumatic fever. Dr. Jones, who gave the report, emphasized in discussion that it omitted mention of tonsil operations, since the evidence indicated that the most serious danger was by "no means limited to tonsils."

"One person with a cold can set up an epidemic of recurrence among children convalescing from rheumatic fever," said Dr. William D. Stroud of Philadelphia. He said that about 10 years ago when a child was laid off, except superintendents, foremen and office workers. Shoes in stock are being sold and books are being audited, Lake said.

Lake and Trustee James K. Vardaman Jr. have been instructed by United States District Judge George H. Moore to file a reorganization plan by June 10.

Two Boys and Girls Missing, BELIEVED HOLLYWOOD BOUND

15 to 17 Years Old, All Live in Northwest St. Louis; Disappeared Thursday Morning.

Two boys and two girls, 15 to 17 years old, living in the same neighborhood in Northwest St. Louis, have been reported missing by their parents since Thursday morning, when they are believed to have been taken to Hollywood.

Those missing, police said, are Edna Neum, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Neum, 4561 Davidson avenue; Ann Newton, 15, daughter of Mrs. Jean McGehee Newton, 5251 Plover avenue; Lawrence Thornton, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thornton, 5944 Thekla avenue, and Samuel Garrison Jr., 17, 5934 Thekla avenue.

They did not appear for classes Thursday at school. Police said, police said, and were last seen inquiring for California road maps at a filling station.

INQUEST VERDICT CLEARS MAN IN KILLING AT GLEN CARBON

One Miner Held to Be Justified in Fatal Shooting of Another.

A verdict of justifiable homicide has been returned by a coroner's jury at Madison in the fatal shooting of Elden E. Daniels, a coal miner, by Amos Newton, also a miner, in Glen Carbon, Ill., last Saturday night.

Newton was released after the inquest Thursday and State's Attorney at Madison is attending to the charge would be placed against him. Newton testified he shot Daniels when Daniels threatened him with a rifle without explanation and said, "I've come to kill you."

10,000 A. M. A. MEETING VISITORS LEAVE FOR HOMES

Only Few Hundred Doctors Remain Over for Morning Trains After Final Convention Session.

Bearing samples, a mass of new scientific information, compliments for the local committees and a consolidated plan of opposition to the Wagner national health bill, some 7500 members of the American Medical Association are scattering to their homes following the close of the first night of their ninetieth annual convention.

Only a few hundred remained over for morning trains. The ribbons and bronze buttons, much in evidence on downtown streets through five days of association sessions at Municipal Auditorium and hotel were about the same. While registration for the main meeting was slightly more than 7400, several hundred additional physicians were here to meet with affiliated groups.

Wives and representatives of technical supply houses and the hospital industry, in the week-end number of visitors brought here by the convention to a figure well above 10,000.

4000 Boy Scouts Begin Camporee at Tilles Park

Troops Trying to Outdo Each Other in Outdoor Activities—Tent Facilities Improved Through the Years.

Four thousand city-dwelling Boy Scouts sought to show how well they have learned to live outdoors, as the annual camporee got under way today in Tilles Park, Litzinger and McKnight roads. Time was taken for the camporee was introduced about 10 years ago—it was called a campfire—the idea was for troops to be represented by teams of experts, eight or 16 of the best-trained scouts who had "bored up" on all phases of outdoor activity. They competed for highest scores and the winning patrols were rewarded with trips to the East or to Yellowstone Park. It was cut-throat competition.

Now the idea has undergone a considerable change and project of this camporee is to show how well the troop can camp out as a full unit. Instead of a few crack scouts representing the troop, as many as possible are in this show. Troops No. 98 of St. Roch's Church and No. 90 of Temple Square, Emeth, for example, have about 100 boys each in their own little communities.

Streamers Instead of Trips. And instead of competing against each other, they try to get as near by perfect ratings as they can in administration, campcraft, comfort for the campers, and program. There are no trips to the East or West, merely streamers designating the troop as outstanding, satisfactory or just a participant.

The present camporee differs, too, from the earlier ones in greater comfort for the campers. They had no tents, but slept on blankets in pup tents, two in a tent. When rains came, and they came regularly at 2 a. m., baggage, boys and blankets went floating out in the tents.

Projects today and tomorrow are: Making a written report of a visit to another camp site, mapping, laying five miniature trails, signaling, first aid, nature study, constructing camp gadgets, making weather reports, building model rafts or decorative additions to the camp site, games, using ropes properly, making fire by friction or by flint and steel and a water boiling race.

Scouts in Radio Explorer Troop No. 501, setting up all last night, sending messages to far-away "hams" and succeeded in talking to one station in New Zealand. Editors of the Northwest Monthly still were sleeping late this morning after getting out their morning edition of the camp newspaper. They reported that Troop No. 331 of the Suburban District made a long trip yesterday to Lion's Den, the week-end camping reservation, only to discover the camporee was in Tilles Park.

Five Ticket Holders in St. Louis Area Win $468 Prizes. Five holders of tickets in the St. Louis area are winners of $468 consolation prizes. They are: Mrs. Harry McKenna, 5520 Fenwick, man street; Mrs. Alvin Winkle, 5228 St. Louis avenue; Mrs. Vera Thornton, 3439 Alberta street; Omer Fulp, 2439 Edison avenue, Granite City; and "Bustaf," 929 North Tenth street, which is the address of the Multiplex Display Fixture Co. It was not learned whether any of the employees at the company had a ticket in the sweepstakes.

Other winners of $468 are: Frank Williams, Aurora, Mo.; Mrs. Jas. Arisman, Jacksonville, Ill., and Paul Sandigge, Ashland, Ill.

Fire in Harry Israel's Office. A fire last night in the office of Alderman Harry Israel, on the second floor of the Laclede Hotel, 320 Chestnut street, which he owns, was extinguished by a porter before four engine companies, two hook and ladder companies and a Salvage Corps truck arrived in response to an alarm. The damage was mostly to curtains, which apparently were ignited by defective wiring.

Plunges 80 Feet From New Water Tank in Ferguson.

Harold Rehman, 34-year-old steel worker, was killed yesterday afternoon in a fall of 80 feet from the new water tank under construction for the City of Ferguson. He was pronounced dead of skull and internal injuries.

Police reported that a scaffold broke, plunging Rehman to the ground. Rehman, who resided at 3501A Magnolia avenue, was employed by the John Nooter Boiler Works Co. The new water tank is on Florissant road.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

On Corporation Tax Revision.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I HAVE followed with interest the news items and editorial comment appearing in the Post-Dispatch concerning the proposed revision of the Federal tax structure, which contemplates the elimination of the Federal capital stock tax and the excess-profits tax, and the establishment of a flat 22 per cent Federal income tax rate on corporations.

The Post-Dispatch seems to be strongly in favor of the proposed new tax structure. But I am led to inquire if you have given this subject actual and critical analysis, and if your position has been based upon real facts or upon theoretical calculations.

I have recently studied and analyzed statements prepared by three St. Louis corporations. These statements reflected the actual payments of 1938 capital stock and excess-profits taxes, and the payments that would have been made in 1938 had the proposed 22 per cent rate been in effect.

The additional tax which would have been paid had the proposed rate been in effect in 1938, by each company, is as follows:

	Company No. 1	Company No. 2	Company No. 3
Additional tax which would have been paid on pro- posed basis	$7486.04	$3096.95	$2093.15
Rate proposed (per cent)	22.00	22.00	22.00
Rate paid (per- centage of tax paid to taxable in-	18.48	17.28	19.90

In view of the fact that with most corporations the new flat rate of 22 per cent will materially increase their total tax payment, I cannot quite understand the position taken by the Post-Dispatch in support of the proposed tax revision.

Policing the Express Highway.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
WHY is the express highway patrolled so diligently between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m., when traffic is light, and neglected during the eight and five rush hours, when speeders and weavers make it more hazardous than a Roman chariot race? Can it be that even the motor cycle squad is afraid to risk the danger of the express highway during the rush hours?

AVERAGE DRIVER.

They Want Their Pensions.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
MY husband and I are 84 and 76 years of age, respectively. For two months we received pensions of $7 each, and after that, for a short time, $9 each. This was not much, but it was very welcome. Then, on Jan. 28, our pensions were discontinued, and we were notified of this Feb. 14 (our Valentine). Ever since that time we have tried to have our pensions restored, but with no success.

In April, a visitor called on us and said I had made a payment on our home, which rendered us ineligible. This payment was $400 a collector had collected for me and was paid on our debt of trust, leaving a balance of $1400. If I could collect all owing me, I'd owe nothing, but who can collect these days?

If we only became ineligible since April 8, what became of all the pensions due us since Jan. 28? I thought a pension was something honorable, but it is made by the investigators to appear a disgrace. I've paid taxes for 59 years, and do yet it's a crying shame for old people who are deserving to be so neglected. If it weren't for my four roomers, relievers and WPA workers, I couldn't exist. L. B.

In Perfume Man's Last Stand?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
PERFUMED men have been given a thorough shelling by Fairfax Fulton Jr., in a letter appearing in this column.

It seems to me that women have done pretty well adopting men's customs in business, wearing apparel, smoking and drinking.

Perfume may be man's last stand; give 'em a break! W. A. M.

Negroes in the Medical Association.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I READ with amazement in your paper the statement that Negroes were denied membership in the American Medical Association.

Negroes are members of the American Medical Association in states where Negroes have equal rights. There were more than 40 Negro doctors from Michigan, New York, Illinois, Kansas and Ohio at the convention as full-fledged members. You intended to say, or should have said, that the Southern states have refused to allow Negroes to become members of their state organizations, which would automatically make them members of the American Medical Association.

"The blanket statement, therefore, that Negroes were rejected as members of the A. M. A. is hardly true.

W. A. YOUNG, M. D.

On Non-Resident Teachers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE committee that surveyed the St. Louis public school system did a very thorough job, but it seems to have overlooked one thing: the St. Louis taxpayer would like to see remedied. This is the employing of teachers and others in the St. Louis school system who are not residents of the City of St. Louis.

A TAXPAYER.

GUILTY!

Disclosure that Thomas J. Pendergast will plead guilty to the criminal charges brought against him and throw himself upon the mercy of the court means the case is concluded except for passing sentence.

It is an epochal victory for law and for civic decency in Missouri. It is a magnificent triumph for District Attorney Maurice Milligan, for Gov. Stark and for the Department of Justice as rejuvenated by Attorney-General Murphy.

The overthrow of Boss Pendergast himself must be looked upon, nevertheless, as only one phase of the purification of Missouri politics. The victory will be incomplete until every politician who has struck hands with the Pendergast machine is driven from public life.

All who have been a party to prostituting the Legislature to the crooked, grasping purposes of the machine must go. Those State officials who have abused themselves by begging for the Boss' support for election to office must go. And those who, in the face of the towering corruption which was revealed, remained silent and refused to support Gov. Stark have equally forfeited their right to public respect.

Reviewing the record, we cannot find one thing that can be said in defense of Pendergast or in abatement of the crimes he has committed. His crime is not merely that of rapacious theft. It is the infinitely worse offense of undermining the faith of a great State in its democratic institutions.

The ordinary brigand fights in the open. He is society's enemy and is recognized as such. A corruptionist like Pendergast does not fight in the open. His chicanery and fraud are carried on in the dark. His cowardly method is to remove the danger to himself by capturing control of the law.

This he does by bribery, intimidation and ballot-box thievery. Once in power, he can carry on his graft in comparative safety, voicing pious platitudes about the efficiency of boss rule and boss benevolence. Such a man is not merely the arch-criminal. He is also the arch-hypocrite, with the crassness, when brought to bay, to coin drooling phrases about "persecution" and "crucifixion."

Now that Kansas City, through the combined efforts of the Department of Justice and Gov. Stark's influence in the Legislature, has been freed of boss tyranny, what will it do to see that it remains free?

Although defeated, the machine is not annihilated. The conditions which paved the way for boss rule are still present.

The decent elements of Kansas City owe it to the State, as well as to themselves, to organize a virile political movement dedicated to keeping the city free of machine rule. Surely, the business men of Kansas City have had their eyes opened sufficiently to see the cost of turning the municipal government over to a boss. The least Kansas City can do to show its gratitude at being liberated is to stay free.

A new day is dawning in Missouri. Let the grafters, the political quacks, the tools of special interests and the bench-warmers run for their lives. A tidal wave of public indignation is sweeping in to bear them into oblivion.

CHAMBERLAIN'S REQUEST TO HITLER.

Prime Minister Chamberlain announces Britain is willing to discuss terms for permanent peace "if we could have the conviction that there was no intention of aggression or the further use of force in the relations between Germany and other countries."

Hitler has frequently asserted his devotion to peace. Now he has a chance to insure it, and to win concessions for Germany as well. But before that comes about, he faces the task—a huge one, in view of his past behavior—of giving convincing evidence that he will not use force. He must convince not only Mr. Chamberlain (who has been convinced before, and then disillusioned), but also British critics of the Chamberlain policies and leaders of the nations Britain has formed into an alliance, or is now wooing.

Perhaps the Prime Minister's appeal will be futile. Nevertheless, it is all to the good, as a move to continue the processes of orderly discussion, and to postpone the dreaded catastrophe of resort to arms.

MIKE CASEY'S LOUISIANA.

In his 30 years in the State Senate, Mike Casey of Kansas City has added practically nothing to the gaiety of things at Jefferson City. He is not a prankster. He is a solemn homie. Dress him in the flowing silk of Oriental eminence and he could easily furnish the gravity of a mandarin.

But the imperturbable Casey must have been put to it to keep a straight face when he talked about the crimson wickedness and wild night life of Pike County's Arcadian village, Louisiana.

It was at a hearing of the Kansas City police bill before the Senate Municipal Corporations Committee. Casey impliedly conceded that there might be a few irregularities in Kansas City, but no such tempests of violence and evil-doing as sweep through Louisiana's dens of iniquity. Sodom would have been no happy choice for a W. C. T. U. convention. Gomorrah, to speak as charitably as one may, had its pitfall for the unwary. Alexandria, when Thais was the toast of the town, was a hot spot. And cheek-by-jowl with those wide-open hamlets of scarlet lore capers lascivious Louisiana, whose sins appall the serene and pensive stars.

Perhaps that wasn't exactly what Casey said, but you get the idea. And in the dreadful circumstances the need for action presses, even in this eleventh legislative hour. Let a bill be written to place control of Louisiana's corrupt Police Department in the hands of Scotland Yard, and the man of all men to write that bill and drive it through to final passage is that intrepid reformer, Mike Casey of Kansas City, and no one else.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS' FIRST OPINION.

The first opinion written by Judge Douglas is one which should be of particular interest to the bench and bar of St. Louis. Certainly it has meaning for the rank and file of citizens here. What Justice Douglas ruled for the court—and there was no dissent from his view—was that the Federal Government had a right to prosecute two men on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Connally "hot oil" shipment law, even though the indictment was returned after the legislation was originally scheduled to expire. The Supreme Court ruled that the Government should not be deprived of an opportunity to prosecute violators simply because their counsel had found a technicality involving the time element, which some Judges might have been induced to support.

Contrast this with the course of Circuit Judge Aronson in the Dunlavy vote fraud case. Although the prosecution had begun within a year of the fraudulent election and Dunlavy was first convicted within the year, Judge Aronson threw out the tainted illegal ballots in a subsequent trial because the slow-motion processes of the St. Louis court brought retrial outside the so-called legal life of the ballot. Judge Aronson took a technicality and decided on the side of vote crooks. Justice Douglas and the United States Supreme Court scotched a technicality and decided for law and order in society.

A LOOPHOLE FOR FRAUD.

Is Missouri to go unprotected against a recurrence of the public bond sale scandal which shocked the State two years ago? The answer to this question lies in the fate of the Kinney bill requiring that public bond issues be sold publicly, with competitive bids.

This bill was passed in the Senate and sent to the House more than 60 days ago. There it was referred to the House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence, of which Representative T. J. Gill of Kansas City is chairman. Unless Gov. Stark and the public at large bring pressure on the House, the chances of the bill to become law are negligible.

The necessity for a law of this type may be emphasized by recalling the circumstances of the bond sale scandal of 1937. The Board of Fund Commissioners sold $3,150,000 of State bonds to a Kansas City firm at private sale at a figure more than $50,000 below what the bonds would have brought at public sale.

When the Post-Dispatch and other newspapers exposed this dark-lantern deal, it was with the greatest difficulty that the sale was canceled and the bonds were resold with a saving to the State of $50,500. There was little question then that the Legislature, when it met, would act to prevent a recurrence of the unsavory episode.

Although injury to the State was prevented in this instance, there is no way of telling how many times the State and its county and municipal units have been mulcted, with the public ignorant of what was going on.

There is no conceivable defense to be made of the system of private sale of bonds, with the possible exception of small issues. We do not believe that exception should be made even of small issues. But this question is avoided in the pending bill by the exemption of issues of less than $50,000.

Why, then, is this bill being held up? What is the motive in chloroforming a measure of which there is such undoubted need? Who are the individuals bringing pressure on Mr. Gill and his 14 associates on the committee to let the bill die?

Gov. Stark, who was subjected to severe, though undeserved, embarrassment by the bond sale scandal two years ago, should throw the full strength of the administration into a determined fight to pass the public bond sale bill.

Clamp the lid down tight on this glaring invitation to collusion and fraud.

UNMASKING THE PEDDLERS OF INTOLERANCE.

The best possible treatment for the preachers of intolerance in this country is plenty of air and sunshine. Their fantastic charges cannot, of course, stand the light of day, and their motives need only to be exposed to be discredited. This is the treatment the House Committee on Un-American Activities now is preparing to give a number of allegedly anti-Semitic groups and individuals. Representative Dies, the committee's chairman, is an expert at turning on the glare of publicity. If the full facts are now disclosed by his committee as to the activities and financing of the group to be investigated, the underground campaigns will suffer a ruinous setback.

As is pointed out in our Mirror of Public Opinion article today, many of these hate-preaching organizations are merely unashamed rackets, which dupe the gullible, both financially and intellectually, for the enrichment of unscrupulous promoters. Yet the damage inflicted upon faith in this country's fundamentals by these peddlers of intolerance is a significant item. A good, thorough job of debunking is in order.

That big gold store of Czechoslovakia's, more than $100,000,000, is in London. And London is still a long, long way from Berchtesgaden.

THE HIGHWAY PATROL.

The fight for the Kansas City police bill has pushed into the background a struggle to give the highest kind of recognition to the State Highway Patrol by increasing the troopers from 115 to 165. The State Patrol, a non-partisan and most efficient law enforcement body, is in excellent contrast to the Pendergast-dominated police of Kansas City.

The bill to increase the patrol is highly recommended by the fact that it has the same supporters and the same opponents, by and large, as has the Kansas City police bill. The patrol bill was passed in the House last Wednesday, 78 to 34, despite the efforts of H. P. Lauf and his cohorts. It is also supported by the action of the Cole County grand jury, which was directed by Judge Mike Sevier to investigate the troopers and reported May 11 that there was nothing to "rumors of misuse and misconduct of the patrol." The biennial report of the patrol revealed an excellent record, which included 21,664 arrests in 1938 with only 32 acquittals.

Friends of the patrol should see that a determined fight is made in the Senate. The addition of 50 troopers, together with the installation of the new powerful short-wave radio system just completed, would do much to help keep the reckless driver and the criminal off Missouri's highways.

The new president of the A. M. A. says the average man now has a better chance to keep well and get well. It's about time we fellows were getting a break.

STILL SOME UNFINISHED F H A BUSINESS.

The Cochran amendment, to eliminate abuses in FHA loans on housing promotions by forbidding write-ups in land values, has been rejected by the House and Senate conferees, but in its place a compromise provision has been approved that will be a step toward curbing the evil. This compromise, which Representative Cochran has accepted, would have wrong about $70,000 of the water out of the Manassett Village financing, whose exposure brought the FHA policy to public and congressional attention.

In his discussion, Mr. Cochran said: "It appears that the only way to chisel or cheat on the project (after adoption of the amendment) would be to write up the construction cost." He touches here upon a question the Post-Dispatch has raised in the Manassett Village promotion, and which to date has gone unanswered by the FHA. Even after passage of the new amendment, Congress will not have closed all the possibilities of abuse in such financing. There are numerous other aspects that remain to be investigated and corrected by legislation.

The Department of Agriculture predicts the biggest pork supply this summer since 1934. We shall yet be hearing about Henry Wallace as the Iowa farm boy who brought home the bacon.

PENDERGAST SENDS SALVATION TO LOUISIANA, MO.

The Hate-Your-Neighbor Rackets

The Mirror
Public Opinion

This country has 800 native Fascist groups, some with alien trimmings but all pure American sucker gangs, writer says; capitalizing on depression fears, promoters breed intolerance among dupes to enrich selves; danger in their gnawing attacks upon our democracy.

Eugene Lyons, Editor, in the American Mercury.

THERE has been a great to-do about foreign propaganda in America. The nuisance has been investigated and smothered with sizzling rhetoric again and again. But it is really no more than a pimple in the rash of our own, our native propagandas. A recent study of American movements of the Fascist and Nazi types showed more than 800 big and little organizations specializing in group hatred have set up shop in our midst. Some of their leaders call themselves "American Hitler" or "American Mussolini." All of them help themselves unblushingly to the raw stuff dished out by Henry Goebbels' export department—Berlin is just now to styles in lunacy what Paris is to styles in millinery.

But while a good many of the trimmings are imported, the shops are as American as hot-dog stands, all the same. They are draped in red, white and blue, enlist the Founding Fathers and go after the suckers in the good old style of our great nation of joiners.

Eight hundred emporia, each dispensing its own blend of social poison, is not as alarming as it sounds. It doesn't take much political or mental capital to set up shop. Some second-hand slogans, a few colored shirts or nightgowns, a couple of go-getting salesmen—and another small-time Napoleon is launched as a savior.

In the welter of fancy causes with which our land has ever been blessed, a few hundred more or less hardly affect the grand total. One lusty breath of prosperity will scatter them like so much chaff.

Nevertheless, these 800 must be taken seriously. Other organizations to snare the chronic joiners may be merely fatuous; these Fascist-Nazi fraternities are mischievous. They are not content, with wooden swords and make-believe regalia, but yearn for the cut heads and regalia that spells power. They are attacking the underpinning of American democracy—nibbling away with sharp rats' teeth at our civil rights and traditions of tolerance.

The phenomenon has been studied by sociologists and historians. But we do not need such expert assistance. We can readily understand the thing in all-too-familiar terms, as an ordinary racket.

A Lament for the Rail Fence

From the Christian Science Monitor.

NOSTALGIC news oozes out of the Ozarks: They are tearing down the rail fences and replacing them with wire. Wire fences take up less room, are more satisfactory to stock raisers, and—mirabile dictum—are cheaper than rails.

But who would judge a rail fence in terms of economy alone? All the rail fences we ever saw were a thing of beauty and a joy forever. Most of them have disappeared from New England and other parts of the country. Missouri seems to have been most other sections.

Yes, we know that a wire fence takes up less room, runs straight, instead of being crooked, and looks trimmer, but there was something friendly about a rail fence straggling around a pasture or meadow.

We don't remember ever seeing one that looked new. The rails were as weather-

What Do They Want?

From the Pittsburgh Press.

ON Dec. 19, 1916, President Wilson addressed a remarkable note to each of the warring Powers of Europe. "Gentlemen," he said in effect, "I find a remarkable similarity in what you profess to be fighting for. The Allies and Central Powers alike say they merely wish to make sure of their security and guard against future war and selfish interference on the part of the others. Each of you claims to want peace based on justice."

"But I, for one, find it all pretty vague. Why don't you come out and say what you really want? What are your aims? Neutral as well as belligerents would like to know just how near or how far we are from the haven of peace for which all mankind longs."

Today, the world stands pretty much where it stood in 1916. Cannon are not thundering in Europe, but war is on, nevertheless—a war of threats in which 8,000,000 troops have already been mobilized, and some 30,000,000 more in reserve.

Today, as in 1916, all the nations are saying they want peace. All are declaring they merely want to safeguard their future against selfish interference and aggression on the part of others. All deny they seek war. Certainly their people don't want war. They want, according to their spokesmen, nothing more than due consideration of their "just aspirations."

All this is extremely nebulous. Hitler says he must have "living room." But what does he call "living room"? Has he enough now? Or does he want all Europe? Mussolini indicates that he has certain "just aspirations" which must be satisfied. What are these "aspirations"? The Don says there are certain knots in the European situation which must be untied. There is to be peace. What are these "knots"? Knots are difficult, if not impossible, to unravel in the dark.

Poland has repeatedly offered to discuss Danzig and other questions, if Germany will meet her in council as an equal dealing with an equal. What's holding Germany back? Great Britain and France indicate they are willing to make adjustments if Germany and Italy will say what they want and remove the guns—which the axis Powers are now pointing at their heads.

It is about time, it seems to us, for somebody to take a leaf out of President Wilson's notebook and ask the major Powers: "Gentlemen, what is it you really want?"

President Roosevelt could do it. President Plus XII could do it. So could the Kings of Norway, Sweden, Denmark or Belgium. Likewise, the President of Switzerland or the Queen of Holland.

The trouble with the two proposals already made was that Roosevelt addressed only one side in the European conflict, and that the Pope left out one vital Power—Germany. To have a successful conference, both sides must be approached on an equal basis with all essential parties must be included. It is not necessary to offer to mediate. It would be better, if like President Wilson, they merely took soundings to see how far a fear-paralyzed world is from the haven of peace for which all mankind longs with intense and increasing longing.

BETTER THAN A NAVAL BATTLE

From the Jefferson City Post-Tribune.

GOV. STARK is no longer interested in the Secretary of the Navy job at Washington. No fight the navy can possibly gain up could compare with the battle the Governor has been enjoying right here at home since the first of the year. It is also doubtful whether even Uncle Sam's navy could rout an enemy more completely.

The White P

FOR a piece of disingenuous argument, the latest British Government White Paper, detailing plans for the future of Palestine, deserves to rank with the British Government's jolly argument for whitewash terror and preparing the way for the ruthless conquest of Czechoslovakia.

The administration of Palestine has become a headache, because of the Arab gangs, manipulated by unprincipled leaders living off "subscriptions" from Arabs and supported by German and Italian agents, have stirred up risings.

The authority for this statement is not any Jewish committee, but the British War Office, which, in January, 1939, gave out a 10-page press release on the subject to newspapers.

According to this report, "Arab rebellion" in Palestine is actually limited "to 1000 to 1500 split up into small bodies . . . forming the permanent nucleus of rebel gangs. These small parties are reinforced by temporary detachments of armed fellahin (peasants)."

"In parts of the country, definite detachments with leaders and a quota of arms are in evidence. Elsewhere, villages are pressed into service by the permanent gangs, who are combining night for sniping and sabotage, which have become a recognized and remunerative racket."

"The general policy is more less directed by the Mufti and Higher Arab Committee, but in Palestine the gang leaders are practically independent. . . . Two principal leaders are Aref el Haj Mahomed . . . Aref Abdul Razik. . . . Two leaders are on such bad terms that on more than one occasion open hostilities have almost broken out between them."

"The former has endeavored to conduct his campaign on a defensive and dislikes the campaign of assassination and intimidation waged against all moderate Arabs who might oppose the Mufti's policy."

"The second is entirely unprincipled. He consequently enjoys complete confidence of the gang leaders outside Palestine and his principal agent in maintaining the grip of the Arab population. Incidentally, he pockets a large take-off from forced subscriptions to rebel funds. . . . lower class of terrorist thugs, by assassination, abduction and intimidation of all sorts maintain a grip of terror on the population."

"The power of the rebellion and the safety of its supporters depend on the terrorism imposed on the population by the man with a gun. . . . Even in the large towns there is little sign that the educated classes combine to give support to the gangs. . . . Owing to terrorism, they are supported by the rest of the population," etc. etc.

Now, the British White Paper justifies its Palestine measures on the ground that it is taking account of the national feelings of the Arab population, although the White Paper report, which I have just quoted, indicates that the Arab population has nothing to say about anything but is being systematically terrorized by small groups of lital gangsters.

And the result of this campaign of terror is that with a lot of Jewish blood, the British Government abandons any hope of making a real national home for the Jews in Palestine and asks the Arabs that forever they have a two-thirds majority of population.

Why did the British Empire set up a homeland for the Jews in Palestine? Out of humanitarian sympathies? Certainly not! From 1914 to 1918, Great Britain

AUTO MAKER DODGE'S SONS SUES TO OBTAIN $13,000.

John F. Dodge Received $1,000 in Previous Settlement. Sues to Nullify Will.

DETROIT, May 20 (AP)—John F. Dodge, son of the John F. Dodge automobile manufacturer, asked Wayne Circuit Court today to nullify the will of his father, in which he cut off with $150 a month, and award him his statutory share of the Dodge millions.

Young Dodge received $1,000 in settlement of a previous suit, but the will, but his counsel demanded a statutory share of the estate would total $13,000,000 in principal and interest.

The suit, contending that the will violated a Michigan law against perpetuities, was filed for a $40,000,000 trust fund set up for the benefit of four children, Mrs. Winifred Seyburn, Mrs. L. Sloan, Mrs. Francis Johnson and the late Daniel Dodge.

The will provided that the fund be shared equally by the four during their lives, and that the principal be distributed among their heirs. The perpetuities statute was designed to prevent a person from exercising direct control over his estate too long a period after death.

John F. Dodge died in 1920. The will was filed soon after his death.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The White Paper on Palestine

FOR a piece of disingenuous argument, the latest British Government White Paper, detailing plans for the future of Palestine, deserves to rank with the late Runciman report by which the British Government presented a lofty argument for whitewashing terror and preparing the way for the ruthless conquest of Czechoslovakia.

The administration of Palestine has become a headache, because terrorist Arab gangs, manipulated by unprincipled leaders living off forced subscriptions from poor Arabs and supported by German and Italian agents, have been stirring uprisings.

The authority for this statement is not any Jewish committee, but is the British War Office, which in January, 1939, gave out a 10-page press release on the subject to the newspapers.

According to this report, the "Arab rebellion" in Palestine is actually limited "to 1000 to 1500 men, split up into small bodies . . . and forming the nucleus of a general rebellion. These small parties are reinforced by temporary detachments of armed fellahin (Arab peasants)."

"In parts of the country . . . definite detachments with leaders and a quota of arms are in existence. Elsewhere, villages are pressed into service by the permanent gangs . . . combining by night for sniping and sabotage which have become a recognized and remunerative racket."

"The general policy is more or less directed by the Mufti and the Higher Arab Committee, but within Palestine the gang leaders are practically independent. . . . The two principal leaders are Abdul Rahim el Haj Mohamed . . . and Aref Abdul Razik. . . . These two leaders are on strike and are that on more than one occasion open hostilities have almost broken out between them."

"The former has endeavored to conduct his campaign on decent lines and dislikes the campaign of assassination which the latter has waged against all moderate Arabs who might oppose the Mufti's policy."

"The second is entirely unprincipled. He consequently enjoys the complete confidence of the rebel leaders outside Palestine and is their principal agent in maintaining the terrorist grip on the Arab population. Incidentally, he pockets a large take-off from forced subscriptions to rebel funds. . . . The lower class of terrorist thugs who by assassination, abduction and intimidation of all sorts maintain their grip of terror on the population."

"The power of the rebellion and the safety of its supporters depend on the terrorism imposed on the population by the man with the gun. . . . Even in the large towns there is little sign that the educated classes combine to give support to the gangs. . . . Owing to terrorism, they are supported by the rest of the population," etc., etc.

Now, the British White Paper justifies its Palestine measures on the ground that it is taking account of the national feelings of the Arab population, although the War Office report, which I have just quoted, indicates that the Arab population has nothing to say about anything but is being systematically terrorized by small groups of political gangsters.

And the result of this campaign of terror is that with a lot of weasel words the British Government abandons any hope of ever making a real national home for the Jews in Palestine and assures the Arabs that forever they will have a two-thirds majority of the population.

Why did the British Empire ever set up a homeland for the Jews in Palestine? Out of humanitarian sympathies? Certainly not.

AUTO MAKER DODGE'S SON SUES TO OBTAIN $13,000,000

John F. Dodge Received $1,700,000 in Precious Settlement; Seeks to Nullify Will.

DETROIT, May 20 (AP).—John Duval Dodge, son of the late John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, asked Wayne County Circuit Court today to nullify the will of his father, in which he was cut out with $150 a month, and to award him his statutory share of the Dodge millions.

Young Dodge received $1,700,000 in settlement of a previous suit to break the will, but his counsel estimated a statutory share of the estate would total $13,000,000 in principal and interest.

The suit, contending that the will violated a Michigan law against perpetuities, attacks a provision for a $400,000 trust fund set up for the benefit of four children—Mrs. Winifred Seyburn, Mrs. Isabel Sloan, Mrs. Francis Johnson and the late Daniel Dodge.

The will provided that income from the fund be shared equally by the four during their lifetime and that the principal be distributed among their heirs. The perpetuities statute was designed to prevent a person from exercising direct control over his estate for too long a period after death.

John F. Dodge died in 1920. John Duval Dodge's first suit to break the will was filed soon after his father's death.

BETTER THAN A NAVAL BATTLE.

From the Jefferson City Post-Tribune.

GOV. STARK is no longer interested in the Secretary of the Navy job at Washington. No fight the navy can possibly dig up could compare with the battle the governor has been enjoying right here at home since the first of the year. It is also doubtful whether even Uncle Sam's navy could rout an enemy more completely.

PALESTINE QUIET, JEWS WORK OUT BOYCOTT SYSTEM

By Non-Cooperation, They Expect to Thwart British Plan More Effectively Than by Revolt.

JERUSALEM, May 20 (AP).—Under an outward appearance of temporary calm in the Holy Land, Jews were busy today with details of economic measures to give expression to their protest against the British plan for Palestine.

They argued that the intangible aspect of their projected boycott made it more likely to be an effective way of registering dissatisfaction for the plan to give Arabs dominance in Palestine than was revolt by the Arabs against Jewish immigration.

With the Jews undertaking national registration of able-bodied males and a general policy of non-cooperation the British were confronted with a manifestation against which tanks, planes and infantry are useless except when called into play by disorder.

In addition, the Arabs still are not satisfied, contending uncertainty remains as to what Arabs are to be accepted as representing their people in the planned independent state and whether they are truly representative.

Group Not to Pay Taxes.

The householders' association of rural and urban landowners informed the Government they would not pay taxes "so long as the (British) White Paper policy is maintained." This was regarded as one of the first moves in the Jewish policy of non-cooperation.

The program of non-cooperation and economic pressure got underway after the eyes of steel-helmeted troops on the streets prevented recurrence of yesterday's rioting in which a British constable was killed and 114 persons injured.

Major-General R. Haining, commanding the British Palestine forces, announced that his troops would "meet force with force" in any future disturbances. He backed up his statement by sending armored cars, tanks and truckloads of soldiers into Jerusalem.

The Jews declared they would pursue a three-point program. The program calls for: "A bitter fight for the House of Commons Monday day when issue comes up for debate, establishment of new settlements on nationally owned land in Palestine, and 'legally or illegally' to do everything in their power to bring more immigrants into the country."

Their campaign will be backed by a loan of approximately $4,700,000 which they considered "certain of subscription" by United States, British, French and South African interests.

national institutions said they deplored yesterday's bloodshed but that they were "proud" of the demonstrations preceding them in which 175,000 Jews throughout the country participated.

They said the demonstrations were the greatest indication that the whole country would stand behind their plans to defeat "at any price" Britain's new policy.

Rabbi Wise Asserts There Will Be "Resistance to Plan."

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, vice-president of the Zionist Organization in America, said at a press conference yesterday "there will be resistance" to Great Britain's new Palestine plan.

In a prepared statement, the Rabbi called the British White Paper "an illegal document," said that it was "contrary to the evidence of development in Palestine," that it "ignores history" and "spells death to the last hope of a homeless people," and, finally, he said, "American Jews will give every support to the Jews of Palestine in going forward with the rebuilding of the Jewish homeland in Palestine, regarding the new White Paper as no more permanent than the White Papers which preceded it."

FUNERAL SERVICES MONDAY FOR EMMETT F. KUHLMANN

Former Auto Dealer Dies at 32 of Heart Ailment at De Paul Hospital.

Funeral services for Emmett F. Kuhlmann, former automobile dealer, who died of a heart ailment yesterday at De Paul Hospital, will be held Monday at 9 a. m. at the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, 2727 Kingshighway Memorial boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Kuhlmann, who was 32 years old and lived at 5143 Wabasha ave., was a partner with his brother, the late Herman F. Kuhlmann, in the Kuhlmann Motor Sales Co., 3118 Cass avenue. The agency was dissolved following the death of the brother last Feb.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Lillian Kuhlmann, two sisters and three brothers.

Lighthouse Depot Here Approved.

WASHINGTON, May 20 (AP).—The Senate passed and sent to the House yesterday a bill authorizing the lighthouse service to acquire a site for a lighthouse depot on a St. Louis riverfront site. The operating base, for which $20,000 would be spent, would be used primarily as a warehouse for storage of equipment and supplies used in maintaining beacons and buoys along navigable channels of the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio and Tennessee rivers. The site has not been chosen.

TOKYO MINISTERS REACH DECISION ON STAND IN EUROPE

Terms Not Announced, but Statement Explaining Position Is Expected to Be Made Soon.

TOKYO, May 20 (AP).—Five Cabinet Ministers in an emergency session finally reached an agreement today on Japan's position in the European situation, ending three months of discussion.

Terms of the decision were not announced, but a statement explaining the agreement was expected shortly.

Cabinet members at the conference were Premier Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, War Minister Lieutenant-General Seishiro Itagaki, Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, Naval Minister Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, and Finance Minister Sotaro Ishiwata.

After the session, the Premier reported to Emperor Hirohito and summoned former Premier Fumimaro Kono for a special conference.

Informed circles expressed doubt that anything resembling a military alliance with Germany and Italy had been agreed on.

$16,700 LEFT TO CHARITY

BY MRS. SARAH KOLLMER

Four Institutions Receive $4000 Each; She Was Widow of Building Contractor.

Requests of $16,700 in charity are contained in the will of Mrs. Sarah Kollmeier, 2412 Bellevue avenue, Maplewood, which was filed for probate at Clayton yesterday. Mrs. Kollmeier, the widow of John Kollmeier, a building contractor, died May 8.

Four institutions are left $4000 each. They are the Good Samaritan Old Folks Home, 4500 Washington boulevard; Emmaus Asylum, St. Charles; Blind Girls' Home, 5233 Page boulevard; and the German Protestant Orphans' Home, 8240 St. Charles road.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis is left $500 and Christ Evangelical Reformed Church, Bellevue and Bruno avenues, Maplewood, $200.

There are bequests of $500 each to seven nieces and six nephews. The remainder of the estate, the value of which was not given, is divided into three parts. One-third each is to go to two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Koch and Mrs. Louisa Dependahl, both of Ballwin, Mo., and the remaining third is to be held in trust for Mrs. Lydia Mewes, a sister-in-law.

WILD LIFE CONSERVATIONISTS HOLD OUTDOOR SPORTS SHOW

Events Today and Tomorrow at Sylvan Beach; Tournaments Open to All.

An outdoor sports show sponsored by the Wild Life Conservation Organization of Missouri, Inc., is being held today and tomorrow at Sylvan Beach, United States Highway No. 66 and the Mowamee River. Admission is free and tournaments are open to all.

Included on the program this afternoon were surf board aerobics by men and women and speedboat racing. Coon hounds from five counties were to compete for prizes. Tomorrow they will be in the hunting dog parade.

The fox hound race, with entrants from the St. Louis District Fox Hunters Association and the St. Louis Birdless Club, is on tomorrow's program. There also will be a casting tournament. Townsend Godsey of the State Conservation Commission will show motion pictures of Missouri wild life tonight and tomorrow night.

4-Day Test of Food Stamp Plan Moves $50,000 in Rochester Trade

Officials of Surplus Commodities Corporation, Persons on Relief and Grocers Encouraged by Experiment.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 20 (AP).—Operation for four days of the Government's first experimental food stamp plan for moving surplus commodities has started near $50,000 through Rochester's business channels.

As grocers lowered prices on surplus foods to encourage normal and stamp trade, customers bought so many commodities that more than $1000 in stamps were redeemed by merchants to replenish depleted stocks.

Officials of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation, persons on relief, and grocers expressed encouragement at the way in which the plan was working.

Eligible to participate are 9000 on home relief, 3000 old-age pensioners, 3600 WPA workers and several thousand who received veterans' relief and other forms of aid. Those receiving home and veterans' relief have been the only ones to participate thus far, as they received their welfare checks May 15, the day before the plan went into effect. The old-age pensioners are expected to take part after checks are distributed June 1, and WPA workers will receive their pay about May 25.

How Plan Works.

Welfare agencies supply information on all cases and where master cards are prepared for each case, listing the minimum and maximum amount of stamps that can be purchased. A minimum of about $1 a week a person in the family and a maximum of about $150 are set.

The participant presents his identification card at the FSCC office, where he buys orange stamps, in 25-cent denominations, good for any kind of food in 1200 grocery stores.

The FSCC gives him 50 cents worth of blue stamps for every dollar's worth of orange stamps. These blue stamps are good only for foods which the Secretary of Agriculture has designated as surplus, at present beans, eggs, butter, flour, dried prunes, cornmeal and citrus fruits.

The participant takes the stamps to any grocery he selects and makes his purchases. The grocer may use the stamps to buy more food from wholesalers, cash them at banks, or receive payment directly from the FSCC office.

FSCC officials said 4600 persons had purchased $31,792 worth of stamps and have received $15,396 in blue stamps.

William Schaller, president of the Monroe County Food Dealers Association, and Raymond Tierney, president of the New York State Food Dealers Organization, said the plan is "a fine thing." Wholesale firms said they had noticed a "slight increase" in the purchase of surplus items by grocers.

Former Library Bookkeeper Had Been Sentenced to Four Years for Embezzlement.

Old Man Chosen Chairman of St. Louis Society's Board of Directors.

Alexander Fraser, president of Shell Oil Co. Inc., was named chairman of the board of directors of the St. Louis Symphony Society yesterday to succeed W. Geoffrey Kimball, who held the position during the past year.

Fraser, who has been a member of the board of directors for several years, lives at 5399 Lindell boulevard. Directors are elected from members of the board of control and form the operating group of the symphony society. There are 20 directors.

John S. Edwards, a former St. Louisian who has been assistant manager of the National Symphony Orchestra in Washington for the last two years, has been appointed acting manager of the orchestra and will assume his duties on June 1. A former newspaper reporter, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Edwards, 812 Goodfellow ave.

He replaces Donald S. Foster, formerly of Cape Girardeau, manager from last September until the end of the past season. George H. L. Smith of Boston, who has been aiding in managerial work for the last several months, will return home on the arrival of Edwards.

It was announced that a committee would be appointed to make plans for some special events next season in observance of the orchestra's sixtieth anniversary.

BAPTISTS SCORE U. S. AMENITIES TO VATICAN

Southern Convention Criticizes Roosevelt for Sending Kennedy to Pope's Coronation.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., May 20 (AP).—The Southern Baptist convention approved today a resolution "deploring" the action of President Roosevelt in sending Ambassador Joseph Kennedy as "his personal representative" to the coronation of Pope Pius XII.

The resolution expressed sympathy for the passing of Pius XII, "a distinguished world citizen," but criticized as "unwise and unwarranted" the adjournment of Congress, where he is a chief cause of the trouble of the Old World.

"We deplore and protest," the declaration stated, "such action by Congress and the President . . . as indicating a dangerous tendency toward the union of church and state, which is a chief cause of the trouble of the Old World."

The convention named a committee of 12 yesterday to consider affiliation with the Federal Council of Churches. It will report at the convention in Baltimore next year.

The resolution also criticized the statement criticizing the Government for "trying to take over the philanthropic activities of the churches," for efforts to "pension those employed by churches and agencies that serve them," and to "grant to sectarian schools financial aid from tax-raised funds" (referring to a pending $850,000 congressional appropriation for youth aid).

STOCKS RISE

STEELS, MOTORS AND RUBBERS

Prominent in Upturn
With Gains Running to a Point or So—Little Pickup in Volume.

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).—Buying in steels, motors and rubbers kept the stock market on a rising plane today, with favorites posting gains running to a point or so.

There was little pickup in the trading pace, however, and transfers for the two-hour proceedings were only 191,700 shares.

Recently inconsequential weather dealings, coupled with balmy weather, tended to keep many commission-house customers away from the financial district. In addition, those traders who appeared inclined to keep commitments light pending President Roosevelt's speech before the American Retail Federation Monday, in which, it was expected, he might clarify the attitude of the administration toward legislation desired by industry.

Hopes Congress would approve some form of tax revision continued to keep potential share sellers timid. European developments commanded small attention in bond rooms.

Short Covering.
A smattering of short covering in the steels was observed as the suggestion was heard that these issues, despite the cloudy earnings outlook, do to price-cutting, may be overvalued.

Prominent shares on the extension of the advance were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, common and preferred, Goodyear, Air Reduction, American Telephone, Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corporation, Santa Fe, du Pont and J. I. Case.

Bonds and commodities were narrow either way. Securities at Amsterdam, the only important foreign market open today, pointed higher.

A shade better in a sluggish Curb Market were Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share, Wabash and International Petroleum.

BROWNS BEAT RED SOX, 9-5; CARDINALS 7, DOGGERS 1, (5 1/2 INNING)

Haney's Men Score
Five in Seventh, Rout
Galehouse, Weaver

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
BOSTON, May 20.—The Browns broke a six-game losing streak by defeating the Boston Red Sox here this afternoon in the second and final game of the series.

The score was 9 to 5. Although the Red Sox touched Haney for 12 hits, Rookie Jack Kramer went the route for the Browns to score his fourth victory of the season against one setback. The Browns, meanwhile, knocked Denny Galehouse out of the box in the seventh and also kayoed Monte Weaver in the same round while rallying to score five runs on as many hits along with one walk and a wild pitch. Dickman, the third Boston pitcher, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth and Wade hurled the ninth. Al told, Fred Haney's men collected 14 hits off the quartet.

The attendance was officially announced as 9500. The game was played at Fenway Park. The Browns' lineup was: Haney, pitcher; Kramer, first base; ...

Aggies' Stars One-Two in 100-Yard Sprint

Burrus (left) and Akers (right), representing the Oklahoma Aggies, ran first and second in the 100-yard dash qualifying heat of the Missouri Valley Conference meet at Public Schools Stadium, yesterday afternoon. Applquist (center) of Grinnell was third, while Araujo, Creighton, behind Burrus was fourth. Meara, of St. Louis U. is running between Applquist and Akers.

Schaum of Washington,
Upset Victor in 440,
Also Wins Valley 220

By James M. Gould
PUBLIC SCHOOLS STADIUM, May 20.—Chester Schaum of Washington University scored a distinct upset when he won the 440-yard dash in the finals of the thirty-second annual Missouri Valley Conference track and field championships here this afternoon.

Schaum won over Herschel Burrus of the Oklahoma Aggies, an even money favorite for the event. Leyhe, of Washington, was a good third with Torstmeier of Drake, fourth. The time was 50.7 seconds.

The first event completed was the mile run, which had only five entries. This was won by Harry Gordon, of the Aggies, with Ray Gordon, Washington, second; Mildred, of the Aggies, third, and Glesener of Drake fourth. The time was 22.7 seconds.

The time was 4.24, six seconds slower than the Conference record. The race was between the two Gordons all the way and the Oklahoma runner's margin at the finish was about four yards.

In the "100" the Aggies took first and third places. The winner, Schaum, was second, and White of Drake was third. The time was 15.2 seconds.

There was a tie in the first field event to be completed—the high jump—when Sanneman of Washington and Youkman of the Aggies tied for first and second. Johnson of the Aggies was third, and Gerst of Washington, Rowe of Drake and Horner of the Aggies split the fourth place point.

The first record to go by the boards went to the credit of Alan Dillon of Drake, who won the shot put with a heave of 48 feet, 4 inches, to exceed the old mark, made by Black, of Drake, in 1922, by a bit less than two feet. Davis of Creighton, was second with 47 feet, 10 inches, and White of Tulsa third and Singleton of the Aggies fourth.

In the 120 high hurdles, the winner was Wright of the Aggies. Odell also of the Aggies was second, and Balch of Grinnell third. The time was 15 seconds.

The Aggies also came through with the winner in the 880. Dial was the winner, with Brookes of Washington second, Horstmeier of Drake third and Seeger of Grinnell fourth. The time was 2:02.4.

WISCONSIN STAR
WINS MILE RACE;
9000 AT MEET

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 20 (AP).—Walter Mehl of Wisconsin, withstanding a furious stretch drive by Mel Trutt of Indiana, captured the Western Conference mile championship today as the finals of the thirty-ninth outdoor track and field meet opened here. The time was 4 minutes, 14.3 seconds.

Mehl, away slowly, moved up to second place behind Trutt on the third lap. Halfway through the final lap the blond Wisconsin star went into the lead by a yard. Trutt, 100 yards from home, pulled even with the Badger ace, but Mehl then had enough "kick" to pull away for a two-yard victory.

MEDWICK AND GUTTERIDGE
HIT HOME RUNS, EACH WITH MAN ON; WARNEKE PITCHES

By J. Roy Stockton
SPORTSMAN'S PARK, May 20.—Lon Warneke, seeing his fifth victory of the season, pitched for the Cardinals against the Brooklyn Dodgers this afternoon in the only game remaining in the series after yesterday's postponement. "Red" Evans, snatched from the Giants by the Dodgers because of a slip in the Civil office, was on the hill for Leo Durocher's team.

The Redbirds were defending first place in the National League standing. Before today's play they were nine percentage points ahead of the second place Cincinnati Reds.

It was Ladies' day and about 3500 cash customers and 2500 women attended. Mageruth, Stewart and Stark were the umpires.

FIRST—DOGGERS—Koy was called out on strikes. Coscart singled to left. E. Moore forced Coscart, Warneke to Brown. S. Martin threw out Camilli.

CARDINALS—Brown doubled to right center. S. Martin, trying to bunt, popped to Evans. Slaughter walked. Medwick also walked, filling the bases. Mize struck out. Brown scored and other runners advanced on a passed ball. Gutteridge singled to right, scoring Slaughter and Medwick. Durocher threw out King. THREE RUNS.

SECOND—DOGGERS—Phelps struck out. Lavagetto singled to right. Rosen singled to center, sending Lavagetto to third. Durocher struck out. Evans beat out a grounder to Brown behind second. Lavagetto scoring, Rosen stopping at second. Koy forced Evans, Brown to S. Martin. ONE RUN.

CARDINALS—Owen doubled to right. Warneke sacrificed. Lavagetto to Coscart and Owen was out at the plate. Coscart to Phelps. S. Martin lined to E. Moore.

THIRD—DOGGERS—Coscart flied to King. E. Moore grounded to Mize. Warneke covering first. Camilli bled out.

CARDINALS—Slaughter doubled to right. Hutchinson replaced Evans on the hill for the Dodgers. Medwick flied to Rosen. Slaughter taking third. Mize, trying to dodge an inside pitch, tapped to Hutchinson. Slaughter was caught off third. Hutchinson to Lavagetto. Gutteridge flied to Rosen.

FOURTH—DOGGERS—S. Martin threw out Phelps. Lavagetto grounded to Mize. Warneke covering first. Rosen flied to Medwick.

CARDINALS—King flied to E. Moore. Owen fouled to Phelps. Warneke struck out.

FIFTH—DOGGERS—Durocher flied to Medwick. Hutchinson struck out. Koy doubled to right. Brown threw out Coscart.

CARDINALS—Brown flied to Rosen. S. Martin grounded to Coscart. Slaughter singled to center. Medwick broke his string of nine hitless tosses to the plate with a home run into the left field bleachers, scoring behind Slaughter. It was his fourth of the season. Mize walked. Gutteridge hit into the left field seats for a home run, scoring behind Mize. It was his first of the season. King flied to Koy. FOUR RUNS.

SEMI-FINALS TODAY
IN GOLF TOURNAMENT
EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., May 20 (AP).—The "dark horses" faded out and the par-better favorites came through to the semi-finals of the twenty-third annual Excelsior Springs amateur golf tournament under a blazing sun yesterday afternoon.

Grable Duval Jr. of Kansas City, the defending champion, will meet Frank Lojko, Leavenworth, and Danny Uzelac, Kansas City (Kan.) high school laddie, will meet Jack Sandusky, only St. Joseph survivor, in the semi-finals this morning. The winners will battle it out for the trophy in the afternoon.

Duval beat Tom Stephenson, Kansas City, 2 and 1, in the second round. Lojko slugged Ted P. burn, last Excelsior Springs hope, 3 and 2. Uzelac advanced to the semi-finals by defeating Ralph Myers, Kansas City, 4 and 3. Sandusky beat Ralph Redding, Independence, 3 and 2.

Reds Drop Pitcher.
CINCINNATI, May 20 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds sent Pete Naktens, young southpaw pitcher, to Baltimore of the International League on option.

Kansas Gains Victory.
LAWRENCE, Kan., May 20 (AP).—A big eighth-inning enabled Kansas University to defeat Kansas State in baseball yesterday, 9 to 6. The Jayhawkers scored four times to win.

Corkball League Opens.
The Y. M. C. A. Industrial Corkball League will open its season today with four teams entered. The teams represented are: McQuay-Norris, Missouri Pacific, International Shoe and Wohl Shoe, the defending champions. The league plays its games on Saturday afternoons in Forest Park.

40-TO-1 SHOT
KNICKERBOCKER
WINS HANDICAP

NEW YORK, May 20 (AP).—Joseph E. Widener's 40 to 1 shot three-year-old Knickerbocker won the Metropolitan Handicap mile, feature of Belmont Park's program today, beating seven other horses.

Taking the lead as the field rounded into the stretch, the son of Teddy-Whisper L. ass won his third straight race and remained undefeated for his turf career. He had only two previous outings.

Sovering the mile in 1:37.1-5, he finished two lengths in front of Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Heel Fly, which saved the place by a head from Edward Friendly's Jacala. The Mad Hatter Handicap, a feature on the program, lived up to its name when two horses were disqualified, leaving A. G. C. Sage's Entracte the winner of the six-furlong dash.

This racing rarity was caused by a mixup at the eighth pole, just as Hugh W. Jackson's Ariel Toy, winner of the Arkansas Derby, moved up to take the lead as the field came down the stretch. Joe W. Brown's Spillway was running on the inside, and Entracte was in the middle. One of the horses swerved, causing a bumping.

Ariel Toy finished first, with Entracte second and Spillway third, but Joecky Basil James, aboard Entracte, claimed a foul and the stewards allowed it after lengthy discussion. This tossed Ariel Toy and S. pillway all the way out of the picture, leaving Entracte, Greentree Stable's Armor Bearer and Townsend B. Martin's Cravat to take the money positions in that order. Entracte paid 7 to 5.

Corkball League Opens.
The Y. M. C. A. Industrial Corkball League will open its season today with four teams entered. The teams represented are: McQuay-Norris, Missouri Pacific, International Shoe and Wohl Shoe, the defending champions. The league plays its games on Saturday afternoons in Forest Park.

BEARS' GOLF TEAM, WHICH 1237, RETAINS VALLEY HONORS

GILLES SCORES 295, CAPTURES SINGLES TITLE

Shelton, Grinnell, Second in Individual Competition, With Young and O'Brien Next.

Behind the accurate shooting of Charlie Gilles, the Washington University Bears retained their Missouri Valley Conference golf championship in the 72-hole tournament concluded at Forest — yesterday. Gilles, with 295, took the individual title, while the Bruins had 1237 to retain team honors.

Ted Young was second for the victors, with 305, to finish in a third place tie in the individual race. Bud Alexander, captain of the Washington foursome, finished with 317, while Bob White had an aggregate of 320.

Grinnell was second in the team competitions with 1267, while Oklahoma A. and M. took third with 1273.

Gilles shot the most consistent golf of the tournament, in winning by nine strokes from Alex Shelton of Grinnell. The Washington star had 77 on his first 18 holes Thursday, and then scored a one under at 71, for that afternoon's round.

Yesterday morning he posted 74, then took 74 for the final round. An 82 on the second round card ruined Shelton's championship chances.

Young and Bill O'Brien of St. Louis tied for third in the individual race with 305.

The final team standings: Washington, 1237; Grinnell, 1267; Oklahoma A. and M., 1273; St. Louis, 1273; St. Mary's, 1333.

COOK
BOOKS

By Ted Cook

GRANDFATHER is very busy these days with his petunias. He managed to acquire some 200 damaged flower pots—the six-inch size. Some of them were slightly cracked—all were second. That, however, made it possible for him to drive a good bargain. He got them for 4 cents each. The only difficulty, however, is the fact that he transports them, a few at a time, from the other side of town. Cracked pots, as Grandfather logically points out, must be more carefully handled than prime pots. So Grandfather wraps each pot in old newspaper and the rest of us spend a lot of time transporting Grandfather across town. Although we wouldn't go so far as to call Grandfather's enthusiasm, it is apparent enough that Grandfather's pots, if you count trouble, time, breakage and transportation, are not costing much more than twice the amount and perfect pots would cost delivered. And he could get a more adequate size. After all, a six-inch pot is simply too small for Grandfather's petunias, because he is trying to grow giant white and salmon petunias which will measure six inches across the bloom. He hopes within a year to get a seven-inch petunia—that being the measurement of a petunia he read about recently.

And before we get on with this report we want to say that Grandfather is very careful about his procedure. The pots are kept in half shade much of the time, moved into the sun in mid-morning and then if the young plants seem to be uncomfortable in the heat, he moves them all back into partial shade. He applies a mysterious green liquid by the teaspoon and acts as though this elixir were a secret formula—and perhaps it is.

We do not care to dwell longer on Grandfather's petunias at this time and only mentioned them as a prelude to some of the conversation that has emerged during the monotonous cross-town trips with the cracked pots.

Airplanes dived in the sun overhead and this reminded Grandfather of the first flight across the Channel.

"Do you know," he asked "who rode in the balloon with Blanchard and the Frenchman?"

We did not.

"That man," says Grandfather, "was Dr. Jeffries of Boston. I have his account of the levitation."

Grandfather explains that "levitation" means the same as "aerobation."

Grandfather reveals that he has practically memorized the doctor's account.

The Channel flight was made a year after the Montgolfiers' first experiments, in which a rooster, a duck and a sheep were the only living things to ascend.

Doc Jeffries supplied the bankroll and acted as co-pilot.

The Frenchman and the doctor waited three weeks for favorable conditions. They rose from the white cliffs of Dover at 1 p. m. Jan. 7, 1785.

The pioneer aeronauts were kept very busy for about three hours. Four times the balloon nearly went into the Channel.

The first danger was averted by tossing over the sandbags.

The next crisis was met by heaving all loose objects, including apples and biscuits, ornaments, lining anchor, cords and "oar-wings."

Finally the two gentlemen removed and threw over their coats and trousers.

They put on cork jackets but finally tossed them overboard, too.

"There was nothing left to throw overboard," explains Grandfather, "but unless they lightened 'er up by a pound of two they'd perish. They were desperate."

"What did they do?" we asked. "I don't remember," says Grandfather. "What's important is the

BELIEVE IT OR NOT

Thirty miles from Alamosa, Colorado, lie the Sand Dunes National Monument at the foothills of the Sangre de Cristo (Blood of Christ) Mountains. The gold contained in the 36 square miles of dunes is estimated to average 54 cents per ton—a total of $6,000,000,000. Because the area is a National Monument, no one is permitted to work the dunes to obtain the gold content.

Doctor Recalls
Article on "How
It Feels to Die"Says Irvin S. Cobb Wrote
It After Recovering From Serious Illness.

By

Logan Clendenning, M. D.

IRVIN S. COBB once wrote an article in a magazine called, "How It Feels to Die."

This was a most intelligent and instructive piece of clinical observation, and it would have been worthy of any doctor in the land. In fact, so good is it that I repeat it nearly every year to my medical students and also to my class of nurses.

Cobb had the great advantage of being an intelligent person who was vitally interested in the patient under observation, which was Cobb himself. I thought of the story while I was writing an account of hemorrhage from a stomach ulcer. I said that anybody could tell when that was happening, but there are exceptions and Cobb's story illustrates at least one of them.

He relates that on one occasion he was on a lecture tour. He made one night stands and he made only cities of some size. That last item is important because in every city he visited he called up a doctor for advice, and the point is, he did not get only country doctors, who are so often—all too often—sneered at, but he got the best doctors in the biggest cities in the country.

What was the matter with Cobb was that every evening as he was getting ready for his lecture, dressing in his hotel room, he would feel faint. He would also be a little nauseated and he would have to lie down on the bed a while. Then the feeling would pass off and he would get up, dress and go give his lecture in his usual grand style.

Well, one night the feeling came over him and he lay down on the bed. But the feeling did not pass off; instead he passed off. The next thing he knew he was in the hospital, his manager and a doctor and a nurse in the room.

And then he said he began to feel what it was like to die. He felt, he said, like a sphere that sank down under the surface of the ocean and through more and more dark and cool depths, until finally it hit the bottom. Then gradually it began to rise, and it rose up through the same layers, getting warmer and warmer and lighter and lighter all the time until it reached the surface, and then he heaved a deep sigh.

He kept waiting for the time, which he knew was going to happen, when he would hit the bottom and wouldn't come up. And it's worth noting, I think, that he wasn't at all afraid, but fascinatingly interested in the experience.

The doctor was doing what no other doctor had done for him, which was testing his blood hemoglobin. It was a third what it should be, which showed that he was suffering from internal hemorrhage and had been for weeks. It came as was afterward discovered, from a silent stomach ulcer, and because Cobb did not complain of the usual discomforts of an ulcer, the other doctors he saw put down the trouble to the neurotic idiosyncrasies of a literary man, patted Cobb on the back and asked for a seat in his lecture.

The lesson is a very serious one because what Cobb described is the syndrome of internal concealed hemorrhage. A medical graduate came up to me once several years after he had heard me tell this story in class, and said, "You know, the first patient I ever saw after medical school was a case of Cobb's, and not another doctor in the hospital recognized it."

The treatment, of course, is blood transfusion, which, besides liver extract, iron and the vitamins, is the fourth great remedy we have for blood diseases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

A. S. R.: "Can you tell me where to address a letter requesting literature in Braille for the blind?"

Answer—American Printing House for the Blind, 1839 Franklin Avenue, Louisville, Ky.

B. J. C.: "Does exercise help to make weak eyes good?"

Answer—Exercise of the eye muscles is used in children for the relief of squint. General bodily exercises do not help weak eyes. But "weak eyes" is a very vague term.

"THE COAT HAS TO BE BIG ENOUGH FOR HIM TO DO HIS COMMENCEMENT SPEECH GESTURES COMFORTABLY."

Ballroom Etiquette

By Arthur Murray

From His Book, "How to Become a Good Dancer."

CHAPTER 42.

DANCING is a partnership pastime, usually enjoyed in a social group. For the comfort, convenience and happiness of all the dancers, certain rules of the game have come to be recognized by well-mannered people. Some of these rules apply only at very formal affairs. Others are observed always.

Generally speaking, the full enjoyment of dancing depends upon simply living up to the Golden Rule—consideration of others, consideration of your hostess, and consideration of your partner.

The man who accepts a hostess' invitation to a dance and then spends his whole evening with only one dancing partner is selfish and rude. The girl who refuses to dance with one man and then accepts another, possibly more attractive, is guilty not only of bad manners, but of heartless unkindness as well.

Once you have accepted an invitation to a dance, there are certain things which you have automatically agreed to be expected of you. You are expected to be suitably dressed, pleasant company, and—above all—able to dance. If you cannot play tennis or bridge, you wouldn't dream of accepting an invitation to play either. With dancing, have the courage to refuse if you can't dance well enough for your partners to enjoy it. (And then make a resolution, and keep it, to practice until you can dance well enough to accept the next invitation.)

This book of course is not the place for a general review of good manners, though an evening spent dancing is quite certain to display a person's knowledge of them. In the articles to follow, therefore, I will point out the points of etiquette that apply directly to dancing.

Courtesy should mark everything you do on the dance floor. You should guide your partner smoothly through the other dancing couples—being careful that your hands or elbows do not collide with others—choosing your walking or chase steps or turns, so that your dance pattern will not bring you right in the path of other dancers—helping at every step to maintain a spirit of courtesy and friendliness among those who are dancing.

Those Women

Who Fear the

Age of Forty

They Seek Spotlight in Effort to Remain Young

Says Columnist.

By Elsie Robinson

THOSE FRANTIC Forties—every day now there's a chorus of their what'll-we-do wails. "What's left for us?" they cry. "No more romance. Gray-haired. Fat. Yet they tell us life begins at forty."

It does, sisters. Or at 50—or 60 if we're willing. But the trouble with most of us women is—we're not content for life to just begin. We want it to begin in the spotlight. And if it doesn't we won't play.

For 38 years we've been pleasant, friendly, normal human beings with pleasant, friendly normal human interests. We've liked to sew, play with our babies, go to good shows with our husbands, have a game of bridge with the women friends. Between times we've loafed around in beach pajamas, piled on tissue cream and read a good love story. Or gossip over the phone with Mabel.

All of which was quite as it should be. Maybe we couldn't read the names in the bright lights, but we were making history just the same—all the history we were fitted to make, or could understand or enjoy.

Then one day we chance upon a gray hair, or the saleslady hints that we shouldn't wear those girlish models any more, and a dramatic turmoil takes possession of us. We're growing old! We'll soon be dead. Then what will we have to show for the wasted years? Nothing. And who knows we're a waste? Nobody. Just another faded Woman, that's what we are. So it's up to us to get busy and "express ourselves."

Meaning what? We don't exactly know. But "something worth while." Like writing—or acting—or sumpting. Do we know anything about these professions? We don't. But we think we would be lovely to be like them. Doing such thrilling things! We everybody talking about you. As we always felt we could do something like that if we just had better theater than the other fellows' and we'll show 'em.

So at 40 we decide to make "begin" by turning our simple Brown Leghorn selves into Birds of Paradise. And, of course, it doesn't work. For we haven't the makings of a Bird.

Wards of Paradise are all about. Nor have we the slightest idea of the hard work involved in the performance. And we're extremely uncomfortable—as well as complete failures—if someone handed us their job. On the other hand, we have the makings for 40 or 40 years more of just such a friendly, normal existence as we enjoyed before we were 40. We can continue to do those things which are within our range. Ma doughnuts. If we can't paint watercolors. Neighbor with the roses with the stars.

But we can't feel that this is enough. Thanks to our cockney American theories of success, we never content to be just ourselves. We feel we must do something different. Something bigger or better than the other fellows'—and we're not alone in this. So instead of letting life begin at 40 along the lines we like and understand, we go around yawning, yearning and yelling we've been shortchanged. We have. But by whom?

Home-Made Boston Baked Beans
(Grand for Picnic or Home Serving)
Four cups white beans (navy).
Eight cups water.
One-fourth cup chopped onions.
Two teaspoons salt.
One-half teaspoon dry mustard.
One-half teaspoon pepper.
One-half pound fresh pork, cubed.
One-half cup molasses.
One-third cup dark brown sugar.
Wash and look over beans and discard any brown ones. Add the water and soak for several hours or over night. Cover and simmer about one hour—until the beans are tender but not soft. Drain and reserve the bean stock. Place the onions and seasonings in a bean pot. Mix the beans with pork, molasses and sugar. Pour into the pot. Cover with reserved bean stock. Add a lid. Bake for six hours in a very slow oven. Replenish stock when needed. Cook during the last hour. Serve hot or cold.
Salt pork may be used in place of the fresh pork, but fresh pork gives an unusually good flavor.

IF YOU ASK My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Mrs. Carr: SEVERAL months ago, I started dating a girl for whom I cared a lot. She is 19 years of age and will graduate from high school this month. Would it be proper for me to buy her a graduation present or will it be expected of me? If so, could you tell me of some appropriate gifts?
HAPPY BUT DUMB.

You understand better than any outsider could, what the friendship is. While it might not be incumbent, exactly, it would be perfectly good taste to remember her at this time which is, of course, important to her. A necklace and bracelet to match, of the costume jewelry worn now (in some way doing a little detective work about her preferences), a pin made of her initials either in wood or metal, or a compact marked with her first name would be appropriate.

Dear Mrs. Carr: PLEASE ANSWER the following questions: When introducing my uncle, Lon Smith, is it correct to say "Miss Black, this is my uncle, Mr. Smith"? And suppose I am introducing my uncle to my pastor? And should I rise when a preacher comes and speaks and shakes hands? How should one refer to one's pastor?

My sister and I met a man friend who took us to a cafe. Shouldn't one of us have sat on his side of the table with him instead of both sitting across from him?
Having met persons who, when they leave say, "I'm glad I met you" what do you say in return?

You should introduce your uncle in the way you have given. You would introduce Miss Black to your pastor in the same way that is mentioned first; unless he is a much older man. It is accepted good form to rise when introduced to persons of distinction and in your own home you should rise to meet any guest. A minister, clergyman or pastor is spoken of to one's friends as "The Reverend D. F. Brooks" or "Our minister, Mr. Brooks," unless he is a Doctor of Divinity, then you would say "Dr. Brooks."

The less awkward seating, is the man on one side of the small table and the girls facing him. He then is not obliged to keep turning his head from one to the other.
"I am glad I met you" is not as good form as, "I am glad to have met you." The reply can be "Thank you so much, it has been a pleasure," or "I have enjoyed meeting you."

Dear Mrs. Carr: I WOULD LIKE to know if there is a monthly magazine on sale about cartooning and drawing; if so, please tell me where I could purchase it.
H. B.

You will find the names of magazines of this kind and much literature on the subject at the Main Public Library.

Dear Mrs. Carr: OUR CLASS is sponsoring a party, in which members outside of the school can come. If a member of the class asks a boy to go with her, who is supposed to buy the tickets?

DUMB DORAS.
You can say to any of your friends you think would like to go that the party is to be given and that it will be a "Dutch Treat." If they express a desire to join you, or you ask the boy if he would care to be one of the crowd, he will ask you how much the ticket will be or you can say that the tickets will be so much for each person.

Dear Mrs. Carr: WILL YOU PLEASE publish the following in your column for the benefit of the boy who wrote to you in regard to roots and herbs: If he will write me to the address I am giving, he will be sent free and post-paid the names and addresses of root and herb dealers in St. Louis and New York City, ZEE MEADAR, Route 2, Staunton, Ill.

"I was South and opened the heart jack. My partner won with the ace and East played the five spot. North returned the heart nine and East covered with the queen. I won with the king and dummy discarded a small spade. What was my next correct play? I feared that East still held the eight and another heart, and so I shifted to the spade jack, figuring that to set the contract I would need another lead from partner. I thought it probable that my partner had a trick somewhere in the hand and that, even if this trick developed, we would not set the contract if I first cashed my heart ten and set up declared eight spot. There were no long suits in sight, so I thought this was my best defense. However, you can see what happened. After my shift East ran off five no trump. Please criticize and explain the proper play.
W. J. S., Philadelphia."

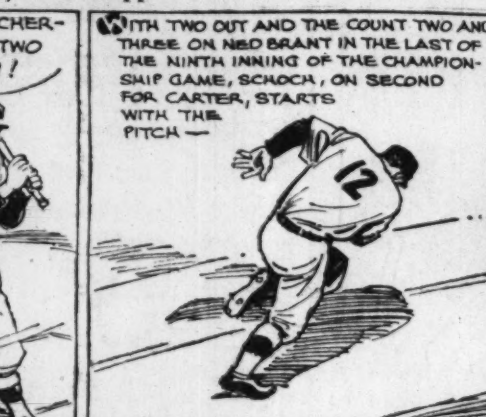

Despite the terribly disappointing result on this hand, from the defenders' point of view, I am not inclined to be severely critical of South's shift to the spade jack. This does not mean that I approve South's reasoning, nor that I feel a master player in his position would have defended in the same way. But it cannot be denied that South was "on the spot." It was quite true that declarer might have started with the Q-8-5 of hearts and that the cashing of the ten would merely establish the eight. But I call attention to the bidding on this hand. East had opened fourth hand with one no trump and presumably had his full honest count. Dummy's diamond suit, although only four long, was impressive, and South could suspect that the club suit also might be good for four tricks with the help of the A-Q-x or A-J-x in the concealed hand. The spade suit was equally impressive in quantity, but if East had first round control he would be able to rattle off nine tricks if his clubs and diamonds were as they figured to be. Thus, South's outstanding hope, I think, was to find declarer with an original hand of no more than three hearts. Obviously, if the heart ten were laid down, North would have to unblock the eight spot.

Incidentally, I must point out that in most cases it is correct for the partner of the opening leader to return the suit in which he held that many cards in the suit. In this case, however, I agree with North's choice of leading back the nine instead of the deuce because the latter return would run the grave risk of blocking the suit in case South had started with a five-card suit.

But aside from all discussion of the proper defense, I cannot see that North-South had much to kick about in this hand. East-West were absolutely cold for six spades, diamonds, or clubs, and even though they would have great difficulty in bidding a slam, surely the 180 points for making six spades (the major suit would be chosen) would exceed the five no trump actually scored. Hence, it appears to me that North-South must have received an excellent match-point score on this board, regardless of the debatable defense.

With Two Out and the Count Two And

Secrets in Love

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER SEVEN.
PEG and Anthony walked home from the Embassy reception, for Duncan and Nadeja Damara had danced together once or twice and then had disappeared. Thalia and Hewitt had vanished, too. Peg had observed without surprise. Thalia Polk was the type who wouldn't stay very long at any social function. There would always be a score of parties on her engagement pad for each evening, and she and Hewitt had probably gone on to one of those.

Hardly without realizing it, Peg clung to that thought like a guide rope on a swinging bridge. Even though she wouldn't admit it to herself, she didn't want to think of Hewitt driving somewhere alone with Thalia; or Hewitt in that impressive mansion just off Sheridan Circle, sipping cocktails in a dimly lit drawing room. . . .
Joan Covington walked along with them as far as her hotel on Connecticut Avenue, monopolizing the conversation. "If that blonde demon thinks she's going to walk off with Duncan right from under my small, freckled nose, she's got another thing coming to her," Joan said firmly.

And then "Peg, she's old! None of us got a real close look at her—Duncan was that quick about getting her off somewhere to himself—but even from a distance you could tell she was maybe even 40. And she has a husband, besides."
"I asked my newspaper lad about her before he went back to the grind. He said he didn't know anything except that her husband was a very wealthy physician or scientist; that they lived very swankily in a fashionable hotel, and that they went around to lots of parties, mostly diplomatic ones. They entertained a lot, too; very important people. He said he thought they were Russians, but then some one else had told him they were such a delightful Rumanian couple."
"No one seems to know where they're from, really. Only that Dr. Demara is here doing medical research with an eye to improving his sanatorium, which is in the Alps or the Ukraine or on the Russian steppes. Why does Washington clap its social blossom people they know nothing whatsoever about?"

Peg's mind slipped back to that night when she had met Anthony where she had met Anthony. She remembered the gossip about the people who had lived there, and they had failed to succeed socially in Washington. She said, very evenly: "Perhaps it's safer to have a background that's lost or mysterious rather than one that is an open book to every newspaper man and society editor in the country. Maybe that's why the Damaras don't care to talk about their country, whatever it is." She paused a moment, then added thoughtfully: "Maybe they are Russians. I've met one or two White Russians. They had had such a tragic, horrible past they simply couldn't bring themselves to talk about it."

To which Anthony, oddly enough, he had no reply to say. He walked on in silence. And glancing at him now, Peg wondered at the granite line of his profile, the firm jutting jaw and the continued silence. She said swiftly: "Do you know anything about them, Anthony?"
"Nothing particularly illuminating," he said. And changed the subject without even a pretense of dexterity to football.

But Peg was thinking about Duncan and Nadeja Damara, trying to look at the affair in a more sensible light. Duncan was 28, she told herself. His heart, soul and body was wrapped up in the service, and the service would not tolerate a scandal involving one of its officers. Duncan knew that. And, besides, he was old enough to take care of himself. He wasn't a kid. Anyone could see, however, that he was infatuated with Nadeja Damara. Still, he wasn't the first young man in the world to be charmed by a married woman, a woman much older than himself. Nor would he be the last.

Something will happen and he'll snap out of it, Peg decided, reasonably.
They dropped Joan off at the Mayflower and Anthony, writing her a check for her hotel bill and train fare, made her promise she would be the first train back to New York in the morning. He would, he told her, send a telegram tonight to the school authorities, trying in his feeble way to fix things up for her. "And I hope," he finished, "that Uncle Nathaniel doesn't find out about this latest escapade."
Joan began to chuckle. "It would be a blow to the old boy, wouldn't it? First you defy him by becoming a foreign service man instead of a

Guest of Honor Should Be Seated on Right of the Hostess.

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: I am giving a partial buffet lunch, seating my guests at three card tables. This party is in honor of a former college friend who will be visiting me. She is a stranger to every one but my sister and me. Should my sister and I be seated at her table, and who should the fourth person be?

Answer: The guest of honor should, of course, be seated on your right. Instead of your sister, whom she already knows, I think it would be better to seat at this same table two other guests whom you think she will find especially interesting.

Dear Mrs. Post: Last summer I spent two weeks with the family of a man I have known very well for over a year. His mother had written to invite me. During the winter months this family lives here in town. I don't think that I shall ever be invited to visit them again because of something that happened last winter, but at least perhaps you could help me to rectify my error if I have been wrong. One Saturday afternoon the son asked me to come to dinner at his house on the next day and I said I'd love to but that I couldn't unless his mother said something about my coming. He reminded me that I should know how casual his family was after having visited them, and that his mother had told him to ask me. I said thank you, but told him I couldn't go on his invitation. Later I learned that his mother was very upset and said she was being overnice and that she would wait a long while before asking me again.

Answer: If you had been a stranger to his mother, then you should have waited for an invitation from her. But since you had evidently been accepted as a friend of the family, the mother's word sent you through her son was sufficient. The best thing I can think of to do now is to tell the son that you are sorry and that you had meant to be prissy but that you had been read such a lecture on this subject when you were growing up that you thought this was the way a nice girl was expected to behave.

Smothered Pork Chops

Brown six pork chops in a deep frying pan, then cover with a layer of stewed tomatoes, a sprinkling of chopped onion and green pepper, one-half cup uncooked rice. Scatter over the top. Add a seasoning of salt and pepper and cover with water. Cook with a lid and add more water if necessary. Serve on a large platter with pork chops in the center and a border of the vegetables.

The Young Man's Task in Finding His Life's Work

He Should First Ask Himself, "What Interests Me Most?" Says Writer.

By Angelo Patri

"TOBY is getting out of college this summer and hasn't the remotest idea of what he is to do after that. He is an honor man, too. But he has no job in sight and doesn't even know what he wants to do. These are terrible days when a young man, bright and healthy, can't find a job for himself. I don't know what we are coming to."

Nothing dreadful. From the beginning young people have not known what they were doing. They are living until they find themselves doing it. Few young people have a plan for living. Living creeps upon them and they do what lies in their hands to do and keep on doing and living. Nobody can hand to a young person a blue print of his life. Not even the vocational director. The most he can do is give you a hint and tell you to go ahead, if you can.

I find that the best thing for young people to do is to take stock of their interests; ask themselves, "What interests me most? What interest makes working for it a pleasant experience?" I have great faith in doing the work that pleases one. I have never seen much good result from trying to do a job one disliked. It can be done, but never with the finish and the quality that lifts it into the field of art. And living is an art, and working is living.

Start with some keen interest. Read about it. Write to people who are leaders in the field. Visit a living until they find themselves doing it. Few young people have a plan for living. Living creeps upon them and they do what lies in their hands to do and keep on doing and living. Nobody can hand to a young person a blue print of his life. Not even the vocational director. The most he can do is give you a hint and tell you to go ahead, if you can.

At the same time it is well to have a reason for the faith that is in you. If you cannot spell, if you cannot write a sentence correctly and compose a paragraph that hangs together, you are not likely to be a story writer. You see it is easy to confuse a wish and a talent. Take a good look at to ask me. I said thank you, but told him I couldn't go on his invitation. Later I learned that his mother was very upset and said she was being overnice and that she would wait a long while before asking me again.
